THE INFLUENZA PANIC—The influenza panic appears to be spreading in London with alarming rapidity. A London evening paper says:—The druggists are laying in a tremendous stock of quinine and tikyrine, and the infallible quack pills of various kinds are being prepared by the cartload. If we are all to go through this not very formidable visitation, the wisest course is to take it in a state of nature, unaccompanied with quack medicines. Quinine is generally pronounced to be the safest remedy. Another almost as good is to go about one's business and think nothing of influenza, Russian or otherwise.

PRESENTATION OF ADDRESSES TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT—His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant was presented with addresses of welcome on Thursday by the Royal Dublin Society and the Corporation of Londonderry. In replying to that of the former body, his Excellency said he was much impressed by the thoughtful care given to the details of their proposals for the administration of the Parliamentry grant for improving the breed of horses and stock in this country, and it gave him much pleasure to accept their invitation to become Vice-Patron of the society. In his reply to the address from the Corporation of Derry, his Excellency intimated that it would give himself and Lady Zetland great pleasure if an opportunity should be afforded them later on of visiting that picturesque and historic city.
