

not of the most dignified character. The leaders of the Nationalists appear in a somewhat ridiculous light, and when it comes to attacking police officers with the choice resources of the gutter and the fish market, things have come to very a poor condition indeed. And yet we are asked to believe that the party are floating on the full-flood tide of victory.

The Most Rev Dr O'Dwyer, Roman Catholic Bishop of Limerick, visited Newcastle West to-day for the purpose of holding a conference of clergy.

M Hartz wishes it to be stated that his entertainment at the Theatre will not commence until 8.15 each evening, on account of the warm weather.

We understand the Rev A. G. Dann has been offered the chaplaincy of Aix-la-Chapelle in connection with the S. P. C. for the months of July and August.

Mrs Tennyson Ward, of whom the Press speaks very favourably, will, we understand, give an entertainment shortly in the Theatre Royal, accompanied by Miss Mab Munro.

In the list of arrivals at Kilkee, which appeared in our last issue, the name of Dr Myles appeared. We are requested to state that the gentleman referred to is not Dr Myles, of the Crescent, Limerick.

The following is the result of the competition for prizes awarded by Mr A. Murray, and Mr S. Moore, for short papers by the Literary Class, P.Y.M.A.—1st prize, Mr H. Waugh; 2nd prize, Mr W. Baxendale.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A young girl named Ellen Hore died suddenly yesterday morning at Naughton's-lane, off Henry street. She complained of a pain in the head about seven o'clock in the morning, and died shortly afterwards. Medical aid was at once requisitioned, but on the arrival of Dr. Myles it was found that life was extinct. An inquest has not yet been held.

A serious accident happened to a young man this evening who was engaged in Steward's Biscuit Factory. He accidentally came in contact with the machinery and sustained severe wounds. He was conveyed to Barrington's Hospital where his injuries were attended to by Dr Riordan.

THE GLENSHARROLD ESTATE.—The Newcastle West correspondent of the Freeman says—The tenants on the Glensharrold estate met yesterday and decided not to accept the offer of Mr Hosford, the agent and receiver over the property. They consider their original demand reasonable, and are prepared to abide by it. The Venerable Archdeacon Halpin, P.P., Rathkeale, and the Rev T. R. Shanahan, P.P. Ballingarry, met the tenants at Carrigerry on Saturday, and conveyed their resolve to Mr Hosford.

Lahinch promises to enjoy a lively season. Already several fan Limerick and other places have arranged a number of lodges have been engaged for visitors for the coming season. There have been made at the hotels, and it is bright. Lahinch has now the a two posts daily instead of one as for on Sunday, when there is only one c mails come by train, the first at 7 o'clock, and the second p.m. The first mail leaves 11.30 a.m., and the second a Our local railway also is not behind the West Clare is every year becoming more popular under the able management of Sullivan, whose courtesy and kindness for him the highest regard and the officials of the railway exert their efforts providing for the comfort of passengers. An election for a dispensary doctor last Saturday at Ennistymon to fill the vacancy for that district, caused by the late death of Doctor O'Dea. This gentleman, beloved by the poor, to whom he was ever kind and attentive. There were three candidates in the running—viz., Dr O'Dwyer, who already holds the position of dispensary doctor, and lately got charge of the district, which had formerly been held in addition to his dispensary; Doctor O'Dea's son of the Clerk of the Union—a young man of great promise; and the third was Doctor O'Dea from Kilshanny. Mr Thomas Lucas, a man of the committee, presided. The interest was centred in the proceedings, and a poll was taken, with the following result: Dr O'Dwyer, 7; Dr O'Loughlin, 6; M'Dermott, 5. A second poll resulted in the election of Dr O'Dwyer by 11 votes to 7. That four of Dr McDermott's supporters, in view of that gentleman's retirement, for Dr O'Dwyer, Rev Dr Newell, P.P., V.G., remain in the post is worth about £150 a year of private practice, viz—£100 as dispensary doctor and the remainder for vaccination fees and emoluments.

A claim for £10 has been lodged by Blackwell, as churchwarden, for mending of a number of panes of glass in the Church of Lahinch. This, it appears, is the first occurrence of a similar character in the village. Some time ago a like sum was claimed for malicious injury to the
