

210 years, are well built and very healthy; a nicely circumstanced locality; a nicely circumstanced sistering of two houses, store, and a commodious garden, held by lease for ever to the Earl of Limerick, at £10 10s only, and two policies of assurance on the lives of the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Cornwall, at £800 and bonus. A good selection of these.

MISS ADA REHAN.
A correspondent of the Irish Times writing on the subject of Miss Ada Rehan, the daughter of the late Constable of the Lyceum, but the favourite's real name is not known. At an early age she was taken to America. After some years she discovered her histrionic talents, and decided to stage. Upon one occasion the local manager changing the "g" to "h," and described her as Rehan. This attracted some attention, and notwithstanding her new name decided to adopt

FREEMAN'S JOURNAL MEETING.
The annual meeting of Freeman's Journal, yesterday, Mr Gray's motion for the election of new anti-Parnellite directors and the resignation of the old directors—Mr Mayor, Alderman Kernan, and Mr McKerr—was formally accepted. Dr Moore, and Mr Power, of the editorial staff, stated that they could not consent to resign under the altered conditions, and delivered addresses; and a vote of censure on the Lord Mayor for impartiality in his conduct was passed, on the motion of Mr Gray. The directors are Mr Gray, Mr J. L. Scallan, Mr Roche, Q.C.; Alderman O'Toole, and Mr O'Connor.

POLICY OF THE FREEMAN.
Mr Gray, in a letter to the Freeman's Journal stating the motives for his action; about the change of policy, expressing sincere regret for much that had been done in the Freeman under past management, particularly the offensive attacks upon priests, and individual politicians. Freeman's Journal in a leading article says that so far as Parnell's leadership is concerned, the change in the constitution of the board of directors.

SHOPKEEPERS QUITTING "NEW" TIPPERARY.
The shopkeepers residing in the "New" Tipperary, within the past few days, returned to their former premises in Bridge Street, re-opened their shops. Three shopkeepers, after their eviction in Spittal Street, returned to the "New" Tipperary, returned home to open their shops in the old town, and to do an encouraging trade. Another shopkeeper, living in Dillon Street, after his eviction, evacuated the "New" Tipperary, and opened in his old home, where he is surrounded by his former customers. Every tenant in the "New" Tipperary, except one, has redeemed his property, and he is at present in full legal possession, though not enjoying occupancy. The tenants are making their farms secure like that of the League grass as long as they have nothing; and more of the town tenants are settling wish to acquire property in the "New" Tipperary by occupying their houses. The Tipperary struggle is forgotten. A little ago a little noise was made over the matter; now, it is viewed as a matter of course. In the Main Street two more shopkeepers have opened who quitted the "new" Tipperary, they never did any business.

minutes afterwards.
Mr Belcher (a juror)—Are the nurses in the hospital fully qualified?
Dr Riordan—They are. I have every one of them trained so as to be prepared for any emergency.
Mr M'Sweeney—If a patient goes to Barrington's Hospital—a bad case—and that the doctor is absent at the moment, are the nurses capable of doing his duty?
The Coroner—He says that in cases of emergency the nurses are fully qualified.
Mr Griffin (a juror) asked if they could do anything with a view to getting the Corporation to use more vigilance about the Town Hall. Children were running up and down these stairs, and he knew that another accident occurred there some time ago. If the public staircase was closed up on Sundays, those who had business upstairs could utilise the private one.
Mr Cole (a juror) said that the Hall appeared to be a regular commonage on a Sunday.
Mr O'Shea said that there should be a protecting rail over the public staircase, because in the case of a crowded meeting there was danger of an accident occurring.
The jury found a verdict of accidental death, and added a rider—"And we are of opinion that the Corporation should order the Town Hall to be shut on Sundays, and on other days after office hours."

SUPPOSED INFANTICIDE.

This morning the dead body of a newly born male infant was found by a labourer in a field belonging to the Corporation at Corkanree, near the docks. The dock constabulary were communicated with, and took charge of the body. Dr J. F. Shanahan was sent for and made an examination of the body and surroundings before it was removed to the morgue. The circumstances in connection with the discovery are such as to suggest that the child came by its death by foul means.
An inquest was held this afternoon in the City Courthouse by Mr M. J. DeCourcy, City Coroner, and a respectable jury, of which Mr J. Kelly, Patrick-street, was foreman.
Evidence of the finding of the body having been given,
Dr Shanahan deposed to having made a post-mortem examination of the remains. The body was that of a fully well nourished child, and it must have been born within the past 24 hours. In his opinion death was caused by suffocation. The child was born alive. He found no marks of violence.
The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.
One of the jurors called attention to the disgraceful state of the morgue. It was in a very bad way, and a juror said he did not know how any professional gentleman could go inside it.
The Coroner said the condition of the morgue was brought under notice before, and the Corporation promised to look after it.
Dr Shanahan also complained of its condition, and the want of accommodation for medical men there. It was hardly fair that they should be running for water and getting towels and other things. He had actually to come into there with blood on his hands. It was kept in a scandalous condition. The clothes of the bodies that had been there were left in. The Believing Officer ought to look to it, and see these things cleared away.
CLEANSING COMMITTEE.
The weekly meeting of the Cleansing Committee was held to-day in the Town Hall—Alderman Landers in the chair. Also present—Town Councillors M. Donnelly, J. Anglim, and P. Franklin.
Mr A. C. Wallace, Secretary of Committees; Mr W. E. Corbett, City Surveyor, and Mr J.

their predecessors were obliged to do for 10 years, and it was an imperative necessity because otherwise the result would be an injury both to the Harbour Commissioners and the Company, as a large quantity of goods which tolls would be paid should be returned unweighed. As regards the coals, the Corporation were preparing a yard at an expenditure of £1,500 for their storage, and that would be completed for some time, but when it was completed, the Company would place no more coal on the quays, except, perhaps, in case of pressing emergency arising. In urging the Company should be dealt with as considerately as possible, Mr Connolly referred to what had been done in the interests of the Harbour Commissioners and traders of the port. When the war broke out at the Dock the Company at great expense fought the battle of the merchants and capitalists of Limerick. For 15 or 18 weeks they brought men from Waterford, and this kept labour at a fair rate. The company, they all knew, succeeded, but the struggle cost them about £200,000. Again, during the past few years the Company had doubled their port trade. No doubt it was profitable to them, but it brought the Harbour Commissioners a large revenue. They collected about £1,600 or £1,700 a year for the annual sum of £15, while if the Commissioners had to employ clerks to do the work it would cost them about £300. All the compensation required was that the Board should be considerately dealt with. In a very short time they would have their own yard ready. Under the circumstances they expected the men in charge of the lever by the Commissioners to prevent it from being used would be removed.
The Chairman said it appeared to him that Mr Connolly in his statement had begun at the end of the question. He commenced with effect, but said nothing about the parent. From the minutes he would understand that it was an apparently arbitrary act of the Board in the use of the lever was owing to the attitude of the gentleman representing the Steamship Company. They could not dissociate the consequences of that defiance of the case, and he would like to have it made known to the Board whether Mr Morrissey repeated defiance—that he refused to comply with the orders of the Board, and will not remove coals. If that were cleared out of the way it would make the discussion much calmer.
Mr Morrissey said if there was an inquiry that he refused to remove the coals he said he never intended conveying such, and had no recollection of saying such a thing. The directors did not intend to continue the use of the docks for the continuous storage of the coals, perhaps an occasion might arise when they would not remove it quickly.
Alderman O'Mara remarked if Mr Morrissey did not use the language he did, there would be no necessity for the resolution that had appeared in the minutes. He distinctly said he would remove it, and that unless his business was stopped he should put the coal where it was. They did not want to embarrass Mr Morrissey if he said that the coal would be removed in a week or a month, and that no more coal would be placed there, he (Alderman O'Mara) would move that the resolution be rescinded. He did not agree with all that Mr Connolly said about the services of the Steamship Company. So far from embarrassing them the Board had gone out of its way to serve them. Mr Morrissey asked the Board to lay down a tract to facilitate his trade. The Board did so, but the tramway was not used since.
Mr Morrissey said there was some misunderstanding as to the coals being placed on the quays, and denied that he was using the place for the purposes of a coal yard. All they wanted was to leave coals there occasionally.
Mr Spillane said it was obvious Mr Morrissey and Mr Connolly wanted to give the matter a go-bye. They were never prevented from doing so, but the coal on the quays, but the c
