

d, rather a cumbersome arrange-it was done it probably would pry. The arrangements proposed engineers would be practically in the case of a time-signal there impulsion on any one to regulate even should the clock be dis-most public place in the city. would therefore be left to the every man would be ready to veracity of his own time-keeper others might differ from it. hat at the closing decade of the ntury there is such a want of e-regulator in an important merick. The mediæval cities in their clocks. The chimes which now even after the uries have a world-wide fame, their melody from the glorious verlooks the Market-place. The e wonderful clock of Strasburg sntion of the tourist in the sunny Crowds still gather in the streets of Switzerland to witness the y performances of the ancient ie. The catalogue could be in-longed; but we must not forget f Shandon, That sound so grand sant waters of the River Lee." t so important then as now; but nics spared no pains to make the e pride of the city and its people. ill not be long till Limerick has of its own, and in their efforts to Harbour Board have our hearty

Mr. Keefe, M.P., has left town for the result of the election will be Thursday before noon.

been given by the War Office for efforts to be sent this week from the posts to the 2nd Gordon Highlanders, the 2nd Black Watch at Limerick, the Highlanders at Fermoy, and the shire at Cork.

to state that all original members of the Golf Club who have not paid their dues before the 31st December will incur an entrance fee. Scoring cards and are in the printers' hands, and may be ready either of the Hon. Secs. in the next few days.

St. Mary's Church—Wednesday evening service: Collect for 4th Sunday in Lent—Vices on Christmas Day—Early Holy Communion at 8 o'clock.
 Morning Service, and Holy Communion

TRIAL SCHOOLS CONCERTS.—From

FUNERAL OF M. E. MURPHY, ESQ.

The funeral of the late Mr M. E. Murphy took place yesterday morning, the remains having been removed from the Bank of Ireland house at a quarter to nine o'clock and conveyed by the 9.35 train to Dublin. The interment took place to-day (Tuesday) at Mount Jerome, the family burial place. Ample evidence of the popularity of the deceased gentleman amongst the citizens of Limerick was shown by the very large and most representative gathering which yesterday paid a last mark of respect to his memory. In anticipation of any complaints being made as to omissions of names we may say at the outset that the list we append is by no means a complete one, to furnish which would indeed be a difficult task. The chief mourners were Mr James Edward Murphy, Manager of the Bank of Ireland, son of the deceased, who was the only male member of the family in town. Amongst the general public present or who sent carriages were—The Dean of Limerick, the Archdeacon of Limerick, Precentor Meredyth, Rev Canon Gregg, Rev Dr Clarke, Rev J W Chapman, Rev J W Hudson, Sir James Spaight, J.P., D.L.; Lieut.-Colonel Maunsel, J.P.; Mr Robert Hunt, J.P.; Captain Hunt, B.N.; Mr Wm L Hunt, Dr Gelston, Dr T Gelston, Mr J A Place, Corbally; Mr John Morton, Manager Provincial Bank of Ireland; Mr James Haran, J.P., Manager National Bank; Mr J V Golden, Manager Munster and Leinster Bank; Messrs Twigg, Phillips, Hicks and the several officials of the Bank of Ireland; Mr S. Deane, National Bank; Mr C Gelston, do; Mr B Plummer, do; Mr Vereker, Provincial Bank; Mr E Plummer, do; Mr Newman, do; Mr G Gelston, do; Mr F Johnson, Munster and Leinster Bank; Mr David Tidmarsh, Mr Archibald Murray, Mr Andrew Murray, Mr
 A W Shaw, J.P.; Mr J F Bannatyne, D.L.; Mr T A Ferguson, Mr J Matterson, J.P.; Mr James Quin, J.P.; Mr J M Stack, Mr W W Mercer, Mr S E Lee, Mr R J Lee, Mr J Stewart, Mr R W Switzer, Mr Rice, Mr R T Levery, Mr W B Gibbons, Mr J C T Day, Mr Wm L Stokes, Mr Goggin, Mr G M Finch, Bloomfield; Dr Fogerty, Mr R Fogerty, C.E.; Mr J J F Browne, C.E.; Mr J Nash, J.P.; Mr R Nash, solicitor; Mr F Fitt, solicitor; Mr C H Fitt, Mr E Fitt, Mr Wm B Fitt, Major Plummer, Mr J Casey, Mr B Barrington, solicitor; Mr Beauchamp, solicitor; Mr J Ellard, Mr H Blackall, solicitor; Dr Browning, Mr Wm F O'Grady, J.P.; Mr J P Hall, solicitor; Mr P S Connolly, solicitor; Mr Poole Gabbett, Mr Edmund M Russell, Mr James Frost, J.P.; Mr E H Poe Hosford, Captain Verschoyle, J.P.; Mr J Vanderkiste, J.P.; Captain Vanderkiste, Mr Moses Caffrey, Mr O Wallace, J.P.; Mr James Wallace, Mr John Wallace, Mr W S Cox, C.E.; Mr Welpy, Mr C Heaton-Armstrong, Mr C Heaton-Armstrong, junior; Mr James Harris, Mr John Roberts, Mr F St C Hobson, Mr William Leahy, Solicitor; Mr J B Smyth, Mr J Ewart, Mr T H Cleeve, Mr F C Cleeve, Mr E B Cleeve, County Inspector Moriarty, J.P.; Mr R Smith, Mr J G Kelly, J.P., Fedamore; Mr T W Browning, Carras, Mr Kendal Irwin, Mr P R Toppin, Mr Sibthorpe, Mr A Wilkinson, Mr Crostwaithe, Mr Blood-Smyth, Solicitor; Mr Elliott, Mr M E Conway, etc.

The remains were enclosed in a suite of coffins, the inner one being a mahogany shell, enclosed in lead, and the outer one of antique oak. It was strewn with numerous beautiful wreaths sent by many friends. The funeral arrangements were very satisfactorily carried out by Messrs P.
 McCarthy and Sons.

NEW SALOON CARRIAGE FOR THE WATERFORD AND LIMERICK RAILWAY

DEATH OF THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The Duke of Devonshire passed quietly away last evening. The Marquis of Hartington and the other members of the family, who have been at Holker Hall for the last few days, were at the bedside of their aged relative when he died.

In "Celebrities of the Century" we find the following notice of the Devonshire family:
 "William Spencer Cavendish (b. 1790, d. 1862) sixth Duke, was the son of William, the fifth Duke, (d. 1814), and of Lady Georgiana Spencer, the friend of Fox. His only distinction in public life was the magnificent extravagance of his embassy to St Petersburg to witness the coronation of Czar Nicholas in 1826. His splendour impressed the Russian mind that a kind of in-personal intimacy ensued. The Duke held the post of Lord Chamberlain of the Household to George IV. and William IV. for some years. Having died unmarried, he was succeeded by Sir William Cavendish (b. 1808), seventh Duke, Earl of Bt-lington, grandson of Lord George Cavendish, who was the son of William, fourth Duke of Devonshire. Lord Cavendish was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated second wrangler and Smith's prizeman in 1832, and was returned to Parliament by the University. Having represented North Derbyshire from 1832 to 1834, he succeeded to the Earldom of Bt-lington in the latter year. In 1862 he was elected chancellor of the University of Cambridge, in succession to Prince Albert; he is also a fellow of the Royal Society, and has a high reputation for learning, having passed his life for the most part in study and retirement."

His Grace is succeeded by the Marquis of Hartington, who now enters the Upper House, thereby causing a vacancy in the Parliaments representation of Rossendale division of Lancashire.

The late Duke was Lord Lieutenant and Custotorum of the County of Derby, and was pater of forty-one livings. He had been in feeble health for a considerable period, and was taken suddenly worse on the 4th instant, when the Marquis of Hartington gave up a political engagement at Bacup, and at once proceeded to Holker Hall, where he remained until the Duke breathed his last.

Dr Beardsley was unremitting in his attention upon the aged patient from the moment his condition became critical.

A correspondent gives some interesting details of the late Duke's life at Holker Hall as Earl Burlington. He had his residence there, and was the owner of the slate quarries at Kirkby, Ireland, and of many farms in North Lonsdale. Fifty years ago, in conjunction with the late Duke Buccleuch, he converted the fishing village of Barrow-in-Furness into a shipping port. It is now an incorporated town, with fifty thousand inhabitants, the seat of the Naval Construct and Armaments Company, of which the Marquis of Hartington is managing director, a large factory, and a railway. In all these undertakings the Duke was a large shareholder, and until recently he took an active part in their management. His Grace was a wonderful arithmetician, and it is stated that he could add pounds, shillings, pence, and farthings in the same calculation by simply running the four fingers of the hand along the columns. The same supervision was exercised in the management of his vast estates. His farms were let below current rates, so that the tenants might be able to provide against bad seasons; but during