The Scotch census return shows an increase in the past decade of 297,530 inhabitants, the total now being 4,033,103.

The Exchange Telegraph Company understands that Mr Parnell has been ordered to pay forthwith £700, the costs of the O'Shea divorce case.

Yesterday a woman, unidentified, was found dead beside a low wall at Cahir, county Tipperary. There are signs of a struggle, and it is believed she was murdered.

The Senate of Dublin University yesterday unanimously passed a resolution for conferring the honorary degrees of LL.D. on Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Lord Ardilaun, Lord Iveagh, and Sir Denis Fitzpatrick, K.C.S.I.; that of D. Sc. on Professor Emerson Reynolds, Professor Cunningham, F.T.C.D.; and the degree of Mus Doc on the Rev Professor Mahaffy, F.T.C.D., and Mr Hastings Parry.

THE WIEDEMANN CASE.—In an interview with a reporter, Miss Wiedemann, who appeared very despondent, despite the fact that she obtained a verdict for £300, pointed out that her position now was a very hard one, as in consequence of the imputations made but not proved against her she would find it difficult, if not impossible, to obtain a situation as a governess. Under the circumstances £300 would not benefit her much. Miss Wiedemann added that she would have been satisfied if Mr Walpole had acknowledged that she was a wronged and slandered woman.

THE ACTION AGAINST THE "CORK HERALD"—Yesterday, in the Queen's Bench Division, Mr T. Healy, M.P., as counsel for the defendant in the matter of the libel action of Mr H. Campbell, M.P., against the Cork Herald, moved for a further answer to the 37th of his interrogatories addressed to the plaintiff regarding his occupations as Mr Parnell's private secretary. There was a sharp exchange of words with Mr Healy by Mr Harrington, who appeared on the other side. In the end the court refused the motion, with costs.

DEATH.

O'Farrell—June 20th, at 4 Wellington Terrace, Anne Agnes, widow of the late John O'Farrell, Esq., of this city. R.I.P.

I thank you exceedingly for your cordial and sympathetic Address. I also thank each individual who has contributed to the substantial gift with which it is accompanied.

It is a matter of highest gratification and pleasure to me to know that my work amongst you has been appreciated; and, though your good nature must have played a conspicuous part in your estimate of it, yet, I can honestly say that any failure on my part to reach your standard has not arisen from lack of purpose.

I did not need this very beautiful Address to prove your extreme friendliness, but regard it rather as one more additional manifestation of it. That friendliness, I am thankful to say, I have always had, and, together with your constant indulgence, unfailing goodness, and ready sympathy, it must claim the chief if not exclusive credit for the harmony, peacefulness, and kindly feeling which have characterized our intercourse for over eight years.

You make kind allusion to my pulpit utterances. I sincerely trust they may have been used by God, the Holy Spirit, for the good of my people; for, though they fall far short of what I would wish them to be, I can say truly that my only aim has been to preach the "Everlasting Gospel" of Jesus Christ.

Believe me to be
 Your sincere friend and Pastor,
WILLIAM J. CLARKE.
