

n repeated the offer of a resolution for the release of the Paris funds for during the coming winter. The result was to the effect—"That having regard to the gravity of the situation in which tenants have been placed by the Government to hold an autumn session, that the Paris Fund be placed in the hands of a committee consisting of six members to be named by the Independent Unionists; and that the committee, after discharging the duty of the fund solely for the relief of the evicted tenants whose cases come within the scope of the proposed Government Bill." Mr. Redmond bitterly denounced the Unionists as a "band of servile time-serving political party hacks, who formed the Liberal party in this country." Mr. Parnell contributed the extraordinary statement that "Catholic Emancipation was an Irish question." Mr. William Redmond at the meeting there could be no union of opinion, said he, "as long as Mr. Parnell's name and his name are spoken of and sneered at as they had been, and Irish affairs controlled by the inconsistent and hypocritical men who first asked Mr. Parnell to be a member, and then hunted him out of it—so long as these men had the control of Irish affairs and Irish majorities the Independent Unionists could go on independent of them." The speakers, it will be seen, expressed their views with great force and energy.

to know what steps the Corporation, or the responsible parties may be, are taking to prevent eel-fry from getting into the water, but at all events the nuisance still exists, though it has been brought under notice very frequently of late. Householders strongly complain of finding eels in the water. This morning a gentleman presented an eel five inches long at our office to convince us that it at all existed, that the complaint is not a imaginary one. The citizens are paying for pure water and they ought to get it, and hope it will not be necessary for us to return to the subject again. We think it right that our office cannot be made a general receptacle for eels, as, though ample for newspapers, it cannot be encroached on by the deposit of piscatorial exhibits, or turned into a Billingsgate.

DEATH OF MR. H. B. JULIAN, SOLICITOR.

We deeply regret to announce, says the Cork Constitution, that Mr Henry Bacon Julian, solicitor, who for nearly half a century practised with much distinction in the city, died yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at his residence, Claraville, Summerhill. When the sad event became known during the day it caused an impression amongst all classes of the community, which was intensified by the fact that Mr Julian's death came as a surprise. He appeared in public for the last time on Thursday at the Licensing Sessions in the temporary courthouse, and it is stated that it was there he contracted the illness which terminated in his demise. On reaching home that night Mr Julian complained of feeling chilled, and being unable to leave his bed the following day. Doctors Cremen and Pearson were called in, who pronounced their patient to be suffering from an acute attack of bronchitis. He commenced to sink rapidly, and it was soon seen that little, if any, hope could be entertained of his recovery. On Sunday night he made his will; early on Monday morning he became delirious, and in that condition he passed away at the age of 72. Having served his apprenticeship to the late Mr James J. O'Brien, Mr Julian was admitted a solicitor in the Michaelmas term of the year 1844. His great ability soon obtained for him high rank in his profession, and he was regarded as undoubtedly one of the ablest county court advocates of his day. His zeal in whatever cause he took up became almost proverbial, and it was only equalled by his clever advocacy of his clients' interests. As a solicitor, he always prepared his cases for counsel most admirably, never omitting to brief anything that would tend to the benefit of his client, and he was noted amongst his profession for the honourable spirit in which he conducted his business. He never encouraged litigation, but once the law was set in motion he fearlessly fought for the advantage of his clients. He enjoyed until his death a considerable practice, and acted as law agent for the following bodies:—The Cork Steam Packet Company, the Cork Steamship Company, the Cork Butter Market Trustees, the Cork and Macroom Railway Company, the Cork, Blackrock, and Passage Railway Company, and Sir John Arnott and Company.

LIMERICK REVISION SESSIONS.

Mr Alexander Lane, B.L., Revising Barrister, resumed the business of the Revision Sessions in the Record Court of the County Courthouse yesterday morning. Mr S. Hastings, Solicitor, appeared for the Federationists; Mr Riordan, Solicitor, for the Parnellites; and Mr Baker, Solicitor, for the Unionists. Mr R. MacDonnell (Town Clerk), Mr H. J. Guinane (Clerk of the Union), and other officials interested in the proceedings, were present.

In reference to a case in which the Federationists objected to some persons in the one family as being under age of 21 years, and therefore not entitled to vote, the claim was disallowed.

LIMERICK QUARTER SESSIONS.

The Quarter Sessions for the City were opened to-day, at eleven o'clock. Theobald A. Purcell, Q.C., County Clerk. His Honor was accompanied on the bench by the High Sheriff (Mr T. McMahon Cregg); the following magistrates were in attendance: Mr J. B. Irwin, R.M.; Mr G. W. Barry, E. O'Grady, Mr Maurice Linnhan, Mr W. J. O'Donnell, Mr Z. Myles, Mr W. L. Stokes, Alderman Gaffney. Mr J. Ellard, Clerk of the Crown; Mr M. J. Kenny, Assistant; Mr Beauchamp, sol., Registrar; Mr C.P.S.C., and Mr C. H. Fitt, City Clerk, were in attendance.

The following gentlemen were present: Grand Jury:—Thomas F. Peel (for Kellier, George-street; Thomas McCann, street; John Egan, George-street; George-street; John Clune, Wickhampton-street; Frederick Hill, Barrington-street; McNamara, William-street; Francis Corbally; Robert T. Walker, Barrington-street; Edward Baker, George-street; Jeremiah William-street; Michael Cahill, William-street; Thomas A. Ferguson, Strand House.

His Honor addressed them as follows: "Foreman and gentlemen of the Grand Jury—I have got so much to say lately of receiving white gloves that I confess I am somewhat displeased that the calendar is not a blank upon this day. However, it is not a very serious matter. There are only three cases before you for consideration. There will be two indictments sent up—one for larceny, and another for larceny, which you will find in the calendar. There is also a case, an unusual one, for furious driving and in that you will consider careful. The case is more serious, in fact the calendar, a case of stabbing, which you as you find each bill, to send may have no delay in proceeding."

The Grand Jury then retired, and after a delay returned to court with a verdict against Anne Nash for larceny.
