

term for such students is of time totally inadeill this is remedied, the ill not be regarded as is an Institution, which to public support, and fulness cannot be over e open day and night for s who are disabled by sive in the hospital be sional skill and advice. several ladies and gentle-their dramatic ability, ormances in aid of will take place at the 15th, 14th, and 15th lected are The Bookmaker, sing farce with the myster e feel certain that the perly supported, and have no a dramatic point of view much as the corps drama- iven ample proof of their ber the excellent perform-Amateur Theatricals held nd others in the caste niliar to Limerick people. r forward to the coming at deal of pleasure.

y celebration of the Holy at St Michael's Church, y state of Kildysart and be made the subject of a retary.

title to the Lisdoonvarna purchased by a Dublin o intends to reside in the g Services will be held in morrow, the preacher at the Rev. T. Taylor, and in ngbridge, Rector.

hignin, and Hon. Clare reland Castle on a visit to s of Bandon, at Castle Mrs Smith-Barry, at Fota mind the clergymen from ions for the S. John's, Fund, have not yet been rop, that he purposes to list for this Diocese on

'Leader says.—The Rev win, M.A., Chaplain at f the late Rev G. Roes-Thorneybarn Rectory, and s has been nominated by nality to the rectory of umberland.

A special meeting of the n convened for Thursday f several important mat-f that there will be no quorum, having regard to common in these days, when the form of goodness is made more of than the power of it"; and a resolution was unanimously passed, strongly condemning such language as an unjust and wanton aspersion on the clergy not only of the city and diocese, but also of the Church of Ireland at large, much regret and surprise being expressed that anyone should be found in Limerick to pen such a paragraph, and still more, that the Rev Dr Clarke should have allowed it to be addressed to him.—Irish Ecclesiastical Gazette.

[It was owing to this very objectionable phrase that we were unable to insert the address in our columns even as a paid advertisement.—
Ed. L.C.]

MR JOHN F. MURRAY'S CONCERT.

The arrangements for Mr John F. Murray's Full Dress Concert to be held in the Theatre Royal, on Friday, October 7th, are progressing most satisfactorily, and we anticipate a most enjoyable, and in many ways, a rare musical treat.
The programme, copies of which have been extensively circulated throughout the county, is one that should give entire satisfaction, even to the most fastidious of mortals, inasmuch as it displays evidence of careful preparation, and is altogether of a bright and varied character. The names of the ladies and gentlemen who are to take part in it, are a sufficient guarantee that we shall have a most attractive entertainment; and we trust that the public will amply support our talented friend, Mr John F. Murray in his efforts to cater for their benefit.

PUBLIC LIBRARY FOR LIMERICK.

An important meeting of the Public Libraries Committee was held at the Town Hall this evening. The Mayor in the chair. Other members present were—Mr F. A. O'Keefe, M.P.; Mr T.
H. Kenny, solr; Mr B. Barrington, solr; Rev J.
Dowd, Mr N. A. Brophy, and Mr Wm. Spillane, J.P. The Town Clerk read the minutes of the last meeting. A financial statement was read by the treasurer, Mr O'Keefe, in which it appeared that a sum of £262 17s 8d was available for the purposes of a Free Library and Reading Room for the city, in addition to a sum of £132 2s 4d in course of collection from recent levy. It was decided by the Committee to place the Act in immediate operation, and legal negotiations are being taken to secure suitable premises in a central position.

MELANCHOLY FATALITY.

On Thursday evening Mrs Kiely, junior, died at her father's residence in Patrick street under melancholy circumstances. Deceased, who was a young woman, was in the habit of reading in bed, and a few nights since the bed clothes took fire by the upsetting of a lamp and she sustained very serious injuries. Mrs Kiely was placed under the care of two doctors, but all that their skill could do could not avert a fatal termination. On the facts of the case being ascertained by the police it was deemed unnecessary to hold an inquest. Widespread sympathy is expressed with Mrs Kiely's respected family in their affliction.
The funeral, which took place this morning, was very largely attended.

LIMERICK CHESS CLUB.

The annual general meeting of this club was held on Thursday. The President, Mr George Boyd, occupied the chair, and there was a large number of the members present. The report for the year was read by the secretary, from which it appears that the club has now been in existence and beckoned to the old woman to keep close But the poor creature was deaf, and persevered on her fatal journey. The train was now at hand and Mr O'Callaghan having jumped off the platform was making his way to the woman, who was now approaching the track on which the train was travelling. There is a slight divergence of opinion as to what precisely happened at this point, it being stated that Mr O'Callaghan was trying to catch the woman stumbled and was struck by the buffer of the engine and thrown to the six foot way, while the account supplied by Mr Barrett goes to show that Mr O'Callaghan seeing the woman lying on the track on to which she fell when he strove to push her back, bent forward with the object of lifting her up, and was then struck. However, there is no doubt that Mr O'Callaghan made a most heroic effort to save the old woman. She was killed instantly, and Mr O'Callaghan, who was lying unconscious on the six-foot way, on which he was thrown by the blow of the buffer, died in ten minutes. He was struck on the side of the head behind the ear and never spoke. The engine and three carriages passed over the body of the old woman, and the removal of the remains off the rails was a painful spectacle for the passengers and other persons assembled in the railway station, on whom the effect of this most melancholy accident may well be imagined.

Another account states that Mr O'Callaghan made a grasp at the old woman to pull her back but she fell, and he made a second attempt to rescue her when he was struck by the front part of the engine on the left side of the temple and was immediately knocked senseless. The woman was cut to pieces, her head being severed from the body, and when taken out from under the engine was in a terrible state, the body being all mangled. They were both placed in the gentlemen's waitingroom, and a priest, happening to be in one of the carriages, did all he could for the poor sufferer. Also Drs Sheedy and Downs at once arrived, but notwithstanding their efforts to restore animation, Mr O'Callaghan succumbed to the shock he received in about three-quarters of an hour after the accident.

Mr Ross, the stationmaster at Glanmire Station, Cork, stated in conversation with a representative of the Press, that it would appear from a telegram received that the woman was crossing the line apparently to get on to the up-platform. At this time the train was some about twenty yards from the station, and Mr O'Callaghan, evidently with the intention of saving the woman from being crushed by the train, jumped off the platform to her assistance.
The woman was killed immediately. The train had not stopped when Mr O'Callaghan jumped off the platform, but was about twenty yards away. The engine driver, on observing that people on the line, applied the brakes and did everything in his power to stop the progress of the train, but was unable, and before it stopped both were struck down and the woman's body was badly mangled, while Mr O'Callaghan was apparently struck on the head with the buffer.

Mr O'Callaghan was a young man, of about years of age, of pleasing appearance and good address, and is described by all who knew him as a man who had a promising business career before him. He was an only son, and the sole support of his father and mother, with whom he lived Lyndon Lodge, Friar's-walk, Cork. The utmost sympathy is expressed with his family in their bereavement, and, needless to say, everyone, both in Kilmallock and Cork, in both of which places he was well known, dwells on his exceptional bravery, which brought him to such an untimely and tragic end. Great excitement prevails in Kilmallock over the occurrence.

MR WILLIAM REDMOND M.P. IN CLAR

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)