SYDNEY COX. C.E. The senains of the late Mr. Welliam Sydney Cox, C.E., were interred this morning at St Mary's Cathedral with every possible mark of respect, on

The sad news was heard of throughout the city on yesterday with profound sorrow, and the deepest sympathy is expressed with Mr Shaw's a gentleman of great business capacity, and he possessed a kind and genial manner which made him exceedingly popular with all classes of the public with whom the very extensive business of the firm brought him so much in contact. By his own employees he was held in the warmest regard and, admiration. For many years Mr Shaw has resided in London, and managed the London business of the firm, but he frequently visited his native city, and was always gladly wilcomed by a very large circle of friends. His premature denies at the age of 51 years, deprives the firm of a great head, a kind and liberal employer, and one who like all his family, was remarkable for his munificace and his desire to promote any work tending to the benefit of the humbler classes of Limerick. We understand the interment will take place on Thursday morning in Belfast (where the deceased gentleman's wife is interred), on the arrivat of the steamer from Fleetwood. A large party will arrive from Limerick for the funeral, and a beautiful wreath has been sent on to London by the Limerick staff. e had been in delicate health for a considerable

DEATH OF MR. JOHN WHITE, D.L. Throughout the county of Limerick the an-nouncement of the death of Mr John P. White, D.L., of Nantenan, Askenton, will be received with feelings of regret. Mr White had been in delicate health for the past couple of months, and this morning he passed away at his residence. The deceased gentleman was a Deputy Lieutenant for the county, served the office of High Sheriff, and was one of the oldest and most prominent members of the Grand Jury. On several occasions he presided over that assembly with great ability, and was connected with rarious committees appointed by that body. At one time or other he was a Market Trustee, and a Governor of the Lunatic Asylum. As a magistrate, while steadfast in garrying out the law, his degitions were tempered with mercy, and he was most popular with the people of the district where he resided. The remains will leave Nantenan at 8 a.m. on Thursday for interment at St John's Churchyard, Limerick, at 11 o'clock on that day. feelings of regret. Mr White had been in delicate

THE BAKERS' STRIKE.

SERIOUS ASSAULT ON TWO TRAMP BAKERS.

A grossly wanton assault in connection with the Croom Mills bakers strike was committed on Saturday night in the old town on two bakers named Bourke and Bresnahan. It seems that named Bourke and Bresnahan. It seems that they came into Limerick on tramp from Clonmel and were noticed by some local bakers who apparently were under the impression that they were seeing employment at the Croom Mills bakers, where a fresh difference between the employers and the bakers has farisen. The two strangers were attacked in a most violent manner by their sensitives, who dragged them about the street, and kicked and dragged them about the street, and kicked and peat them with sticks. Bourke was more danger-ously injured than his companion having received a fractured skull, and it is alleged that only for the interference of some women who witnessed the cowardly attack that the men would have been treated even more severely. The police, on arriving on the scene arrested five bakers, named John Nellan, Thomas Keogh, Thomas Connell, Patrick Parker, and John Roughtan, and were brought before the Keogh Thomas Connell, Patrick Parker, and John Broughtan, and were brought before the injured man, Bourke, whose depositions were taken. The courrence is much to be deplored sepecially when there is a Hielihood of a settlement or the strike, and negociations going proceeding, which would probably have a salutary effect. We are sure that if the facts be as we are informed, the guild of bakers will not only disclaim any sympathy with, but will condemn in the strongest manner the disreputatic conduct of Saturday night. Beurke is under treatment in Barrington's Hospital.

Cross-examined by Mr Foley—I put on the brake as hard as I could when I felt the train going over the woman; the automatic brake is the one I had; at the rate I was going (it beingin the dark); I could pull up in 50 yards.

To a juror—I could not have seen the woman as it was dark; was on the leftside of the engine; I shut off steam further away than usual; the signals not being down I did not notice anything wrong.

James Ellard sworn deposed—I live at Inchicore, and was fireman of the engine in question going from Dublin to Cork on the evening of the 30th September last; as I was coming to Kilmallock after entering the bridge, I saw something falling down on the track; I saw Mr O'Callaghan flumping down and of stooping to lift the woman when I roared at my mate, "I told him there was a man and woman on the track"; I was then about 10 yards off; when I observed the woman she was on her back; the next thing I saw was Mr O'Callaghan fitting her off; I went to fly the hand brake, and before doing so the engine had passed over her.

On being further questioned by the Inspector, he said he did not see Mr O'Callaghan jump down, but saw him in the act of throwing her off; the night was dark, and they could not see before them.

To the Coroner—My business is to keep on the right side of the engine; could not see the platform (the pen wagon intercepting my view) till I was after passing the bridge.

John Ryan, examined, deposed—I am husband of the deceased Anne Ryan, and live at Charleville; I remember the 30th September last; my wife left home that morning for Kilmallock; she was about 45 or 46 years; I next saw her dead at the Kilmallock Railway Station.

Cross-examined by Mr P Ryan—I am not a strong man; my wife used to contribute to my support, and also a son 16 years old.

Dr T.C. On the 16th of April, the cargo, 145 tons, was insured with the Ulster Marine Company for 2390. The vessel sailed on the 15th April, and arrived in Limerick on the 20th. During the voyage very heavy weather was experienced (according to the Captain's protest), the vessel shipping large quantities of water, and she stranded on the Werford Bar, in consequence of which the vessel and cargo sustained damage, and coming up the Shannon the vessel also grounded. On the 22nd April an examination of the cargo was made for Messrs Smith, and the agents for the underwriters, Messrs Mallock and Son, by Mr T. J. Ferguson, Lloyd's Aggnt, and Mr Morgan Fitsmaurice, Harbour Master, who found that the cement bags in the bottgen, and wings, and about the foremast had been damaged to the extent of 19 tons, for which a total claim of £45 28 Sd was filed. Evidence having been gone into, it was urged for the defence that there was no culpable negligeac, and that the stranding was a usual incident of ravigation. His iLordship, however, held for the plaintiffs, and gave a decree with costs, the total amounting to £57.

KILRUSH PETTY SESSIONS. MONDAY.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT) (Before Mr A. M. Harpur, R M, chairman, Mr John Culligan, and Mr Benjamin Cox).

John Culligan, and Mr Benjamin Cox).

COUNTY CESS.

Mr Studdert, Barony Constable, sought to recover from about 25 tenants on Mr Peacock's property of Kilrush, several levies of county-cess, the landlord having refused to pay same. The case created a good deal of local interest, and the county was crowded.

Mr Studdert having stated his case,
Mr C. Minniken, solicitor, said he appeared for the defendants, who were tenants of Mr Peacock, of Kilrush. The tenants were living in these wretched hovels, and it was understood by them that the landlord would pay the county cess, but they were served with a notice bearing date 30th July, '91, in which the landlord stated that they held these hovels on the distinct understanding that they paid the county cess, which notice was notice to quit notwithstanding the original agreement.

Mr Studdert said it was against his will to proceed at all, against these poor tenants, but the cess had to be collected. Judge O'Brien had decided at the assizes that the tenants were liable.

Mr Minniken—Yes, in a particular case, but inable.

Mr Minniken—Yes, in a particular case, but stated that legal advice should be taken in cases of this kind.

Mr Studdert said he had lost a good deal of time and money by these kind of cases in feeing counsel, &c. It had been decided that these tenants were liable.

Mr Cox—If these poor people have to pay the cess as well as the heavy rent it will only drive them out of the town.

Mr Studdert—Yes. I consider it a great wrong to make them pay it.

Mr Studdert—Yes. I consider it a great wrong to make them pay it.

The Barony Constable then swore that Patrick Bunfield owed two levies, amounting to 9s ½d.

After service of summons had been proved.

Mr Minniken objected to Mr Studdert summoning in his own name instead of the Grand Jury, but the point was overruled.

Mr Minniken—Prove the sux day notice.

Mr Studdert's deputy proved the service, but could not state the exact date.

The Chairman said that would not do.

In Shipperts deputy proved the service, but could not state the exact date.

The Chairman said that would not do.

Mr Studdert examined his deputy, and from a memorandum said it was the 10th of September. The Solicitor for the defence then asked to have the original copy of notice produced.

Mr Studdert said he had not got it.

The Chairman said the plaintiffs had not complied, with the law. Mr Minniken had taken advantage of every legal technicality which was his defence. He asked Mr Studdert would he mark the case withdrawn.

Mr Studdert said yes.

The Chairman remarked that the tenants would have to pay it in the end.

Mr Minniken—Oh, Mr Peacocks will have to pay it first.

pay iwfirst.

A man named Daniel Doyle was brought up in custody on his mother's information, charged with beabing her, and he was sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

Two men named McInerney, and Magner, were, fined its, and 2s 6d, and costs each, for beating one another in a public house over the election of Town Commissioners.

Several other cases having been disposed of the Court adjourned.

NENAGH PETTY SESSIONS-SATURDAY.

NENAGH PETTY SESSIONS—SATURDAY.

Before Captain Poe (in the chair); Lord
Dunally, Major Waring, R.M.; Anthony Parker,
C. C. Foley, and John Smithwick.

At the prosecution of Sergeant Brennan, Portrol, William O'Brien was charged with laving his licensed premises, at Corbally, open for the sale of drink to non-bone Ade travellers on Sunday, 25th of April.

Mr. B. Glesson, solr., who appeared for the defendant, asked to have the prosecution withdrawn, as his client had been already punished for this offence by the refusal of the county court judge and magistrates presiding at the annual licensing sessions here last week to confirm the transfer of his license. The defendant, Mr Glesson stated, had now lost his license, because of the present prosecution, which was urged against him at the quarter sessions, and it would be unfair to have him punished twice for the one offence.

Major Waring said if he had been already punished he should not be punished again; the constabulary ought to withdraw the charge.

As Mr McDermott, D.I., has been promoted
R.M., and Head Constable Roden is on leave
there was no police officer in court, and Sergeant
Brennan said he could not, on his own account.

As Mr McDermott, D.I., has been promoted.

A.M. and Head Constable Roden is on leaves
there was no police officer in court, and Sergeant
Brennan said he could not, on his own account, undertake to withdraw the proceedings.

Major Waring—I sun not going to, say with absolute distinctness that a conviction could not be given. We suggested that the proceedion be withdrawn, but as the police officer is not in court
we will dismiss the case without prejudice.

Sergeant Taylor, of the Dolla station, charged Mrs Horan with having her public-house, in the village of Silvermines, open for the sale of drink on Sunday, the 9th inst. Mr G. F. Corbett, solr, appeared for the defence.

There was no evidence of any sale of liquor having taken place, and the defeudant, who has only a six-day licence, was let off with a caution.
