WOUL DIVINE AL DEA. A few days ago, while returning to Tokio from the southern part of Japan, I joined, says Pro-tessor John Milne, writing to Nature from Tokio, on April 23, the steamship Yokohama Maru, which, while crossing from Shanghai to Bagasaki, had passed through a curious dust storm. Small quantities of the dust were yet to be seen in sheltered corners of the vessel. The commander, Captain R. Swain, who gave me a specimen of the material, told me that on April 2, when about 95 miles west by south of Nagasaki (long. 128deg. E., lat. 32deg. 20min. N.), at shout six p.m. the sun appeared quite yellow. The atmosphere was moist and rendered everything upon the deck of the ship quite damp. The preci-pitated moisture was yellowish, and as it dried it left an extremely fine powder. For two days previously the wind had been blowing west-south-west, or from China. Nothing was felt in the eyes, and if the ship had not been covered with yellow powder, the phenomenon would have been regarded as an ordinary but peculiarly coloured fog. The yellow atmosphere was noticed during the afternoon of the 2nd. At midnight the wind changed to northwest—that is, from Corea. The probability, however, is that the material came from the Loess plains of China. In Nagasaki which is 390 miles from the coast of China a vellow sup-390 miles from the coast of China, a yellow sun was noticed on the morning of the second; and during the day, while dust was being precipitated, the appearance of the atmosphere was compared to that of a London fog. On April 1 there was a fall of dust in the neighbourhood of Nawa in Okinawa-ken, and on the 2nd dust fell in Gifu the district where the recent great earthquake took place. The P. and O. steamship Verona, which left Hong Kong on April 1, experienced the same phenomenon as the Yokohama Maru, the vessel being covered with a fine dust, which, when suspended in the atmosphere, gave, rise to so much haze that land was not seen until reaching Nagasaki. On April 3 a yellow sun was seen in Yokohama, but I am not aware that any dust was observed. Roughly speaking, it therefore seems that on April 2, at a distance of from 200 to 400 miles from the coast of China, there was a cloud of dust which may have been over 1,000 miles and possibly 2,000 miles in length. Dr. B. Koto, who examined a specimen, tells me that the particles are chiefly felspar, but there is a little quartz and shreds of plants.

The 80th, and the 64th Batteries, Royal Artillery, arrived here on the march from Glenbeigh, to-day, and naturally presented a rather dust stained appearance after a fatiguing march from Newcastle West.

DEATH OF MR. GEORGE TICKELL, J.P.—We regret to announce the death which took place on yesterday morning of Mr George Tickell, J.P., proprietor of the Dublin Evening Mail. Mr Tickell had been ailing for some time past, but death occurred rather suddenly. He was a gentleman highly estecuted in the Metropolis and suborbs. Mr Tickell was owner of considerable house property in the city of Limerick, and so great was his ardour in the Conservative cause that he travelled to Limerick on a number of occasions to vote for the late Sir James Spaight when that gentleman was a candidate for the representation of the city.
