

Limerick and Kerry line will be able to deliver an improved passenger returns in the next counts, and we think he is justified in the ectation. An important and very justifi- e protest was made by Mr Sandes, the anty Director appointed by the Kerry Grand ry, against the holding of the Directors' etings in London. It is an arrangement ion is by no means fair to the ratepayers h of Kerry and Limerick, who are liable a heavy guarantee for the line. The more al control and supervision there is the ter it would be for the line, and the more e Directors are acquainted with local uirements the better it would be for the arholders. This knowledge would be ined by the holding of meetings, occasionally least, in Tralee, but the proposition of Mr indes was met by the fact that the greater rtion of the capital has been subscribed in ondon, and this is considered a sufficiently rong reason for managing affairs across the ater, but if the wishes of the ratepayers ere more consulted it would lead to a better nderstanding that would be to the advantage f all. We are sorry that Mr Sandes did not ceive some encouragement from the irectors, all of whom, of course, are very ficient gentlemen, but he deserves every edit for the able manner in which he repre- ented the interests of the ratepayers on uesday last. Whatever the result of the iscussion may be it is satisfactory that there s at the head of affairs an influential Limerick gentleman like Mr O'Brien, who gives his est attention to anything tending to serve he line and the extensive districts through hich it passes. The meetings of the Tralee nd Fenit, and Rathkeale and Newcastle Junction Railways, which were held on the same day, do not call for any special comment, it being satisfactory to note that in conjunc- tion with the Kerry line these systems show a slight increase in revenue on the half year's working. We publish this evening a full report of the half yearly meeting of the share- holders of the Waterford and Limerick Company, held in this city to-day. The business was "short and sweet," and afforded a marked contrast to the noisy discussions that so frequently occurred at these meetings some years ago. The attend- ance of shareholders to-day was also the smallest we have ever seen at a general meeting, and no doubt it is a recognition that they are satisfied an improvement in the condition of the line has taken place. The statement of the Chairman, Captain Bernard, was a very reassuring one. It went into details very fully, and lucidly placed before the shareholders the circumstances of the company. On the mixed train question the Chairman dwelt pretty fully, and showed that if the public suffer inconvenience—as no doubt they do—by the reduction of these mixed trains, the fault does not lie with the company but with the Board of Trade, whose mandate they are com- pelled to comply with. It appeared as if the most important question affecting the citizens—the delivered an interesting address, in the course of which he made sympathetic reference to the death of the Bishop of Killaloe, and extended the sympathy of the members to the widow and family of the late lamented prelate.
