The Palace, Corbally,
Limerick, 13th September, '93.

DEAR FATHER LEE—No one who has been connected with the Catholic Literary Institute has ever, in my opinion, deserved better compliment of a testimonial from the members than Mr Cashel.

I am sorry that I cannot be present this evening to join you in inaugurating it, but I beg to assure you that it has my heartiest concurrence, not only on account of Mr Cashel's past services to the Institute, but as an acknowledgment of his personal worth, and the uniform courtesy and efficiency with which he discharged the duties of his office at the railway, and which have secured for him what I hope is but the first step in his promotion. I am, Dear Father Lee, very faithfully in Christ,

+ B. T., Bishop of Limerick.
