STATE OF THE HOUSE.

Dr Sheedy, Kilmallock, applied for 6 guineas remuneration for discharging the duties of the workhouse and dispensary medical officers during their absence at the Assizes.

It was stated that he was acting only 3 days pro tem, and Dr Sheedy was allowed 3 guineas for that time.

In accordance with the usual notice of motion, Mr Connolly moved that Mr John Carroll, architect, be appointed to draw up specifications of the repairs required to be done to all the labourers' cottages up to the present, and to superintend the repairing of same at a remuneration of £30.

Mr John Ryan—Are not all the cottages done up?

Mr Coll (Clerk) said not. In Kilfinane, Glonbrohane, and other places they required to be repaired.

Mr Ryan—I was under the impression that all the cottages were cone-roofed and done up.

Mr Flaherty—It would be a great deal more to the point if a man were sent round to see that they are kept clean.

Mr James Lyons seconded Mr Connolly's proposition.

Mr Ryan proposed an amendment, fixing the remuneration at £20.

This was seconded.

Mr Flaherty suggested to leave it at £25.

Some Guardians were for having it go to a poll.

Mr O'Sullivan considered the amount, £30, rather small, as it would go in car hire.

It was agreed that the remuneration be £25.

The annual meeting of the National Provident Life Insurance Company has always been an event of great importance and interest in the insurance world.
