rities at least to the complete satisfaction of curiously enough is Tory Island, but the residents are not effete Tories—they are vigorous Home Rulers. It appears Tory Island is part of an estate of which two that they reached in an uninterrupted line from the upper, part of George atreet into Rutland-at Throughout the city there were wide-gread expressions of sympathy. Numerous establishments were shuttered, and two or three of them were closed while the funeral was passing. The Protestant Young Men's Association was also closed. The flags over the monster houses, and the Town Hall flag, were at half mast. The Mayor, was attended by his sergeants, with draped mace, and the High Sheriff and several members of the Town Council were summight the general public.

The chief mourners were—Colonel Thomas R Hunt, Captain George Hunt, R N, Mr. William L Hunt (sons); Mr. Peter Griffin, JP (ed-inlaw); Mr. Robert Griffin (grandsoft); Captain Cauffold, (son-in-law); Mr. E Lungley Hunt and Mr. J. MEETING IN THE TOWN HALL.

Last night a meeting of the licensed traders of the city was held in the Town Hall, the meeting being convened by circular issued by the Central Committee in Dublin. Its object vary large, was most representative, and the meeting was unanimously in favour of the objects of the organization.

On the motion of M. Edward O'Connell, seconded by Mr Taomas Hayes, Mr James Quin, J P. was mored to the chair.

Mr Flyray, Secretary to the Central Committeer was in Atendance.

The Chrisman, in opening the proceedings, said they feed been called together in pursuance of a breaker which had been issued at a very reven date, and probably no, hurriedly, to allow of a full-settled which had been issued at a very reven date, and probably no, hurriedly, to allow of a full-settled which had been issued at a very reven date, and probably no, hurriedly, to allow of a full-settled which had been issued at a very reven date, and probably no, hurriedly, to allow of a full-settled which had been the trade, which they might fairly expressed by the trade, which they might fairly expressing body to explain the objects of the analyses are trained in the full-settled with a product and the objects of the analyses and the full-settled with a product of the carried with a product of the carried with a place of the contral beautiful to the product of the carried with the objects of the association. However, and the Hayen were present, he could ude express himself more strongly in favour of the objects of their central branch, which had been could ude express himself more strongly in favour of the objects of the central branch, which had been could use the could use their their very city, town and village in Feland, to enable them to locary their views late office, and very one it was a expected to contribute and every one is was expected to contribute and every one is the by forming local associations, throughout retained be a very powerful b dy. He complained that he lead of the leads of the lead of the leads of the leads of overy sname or pointes on the six the internain their power, and to take all steps in their power to have it removed.

My Hayes second-d the resolution.

The Chairman, in putting the resolution, said they hal all been very much affected by the extra duty, and he thought also that the public generally suffered by it. They had not got many industries in Ireland, but every extra duty bandicapped such an industry as this.
It would be of great advantage to the country and particularly to them (the traders) if the Government gould see their way to take off this duty which, he believed, they imposed originally for a period of twelve months. Their experience however, was that when duties were put on, they were generally left on.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr Edward O'Connell proposed—'That we approve of the action of the Central Committee-of the Liquer Trade of Ireland in calling up in the various traders throughout the country to become subscribers to the funds of the same, so prove of the action of the Central Committee of the Liquer Trade of Ireland in calling up in the various traders throughout the country to become subjectivers to the funds of the same, so that by a powerful combination of the entire trade their legitimate interests may be watched and as equarded whenever they are unjustly attacked, either in or out of Parliament, and we further add that it is worthy of every support from all the Licensed Traders of Ireland." He pointed out that at the first proposal of the Local Veto Bill in April 1880, when a division was skate on the second reading, 124 members voted for the bill, and 131 against, showing only the increw majority of 7 against it. Of the 124 two were in favour of the measure, 28 were Itish members, and of the majority against it only four seen given the interest of the control of the interest of the control of the interest of the Control Compittee. He was sure it would be supported in Limerick, and it was an excouraging fact that they had they rincipal merchant of the city presiding at their meeting. If any man could afford to be independent of the association, it was Mr Quin, and that that made his support all the more appreciable.

Mr Garia seconded the resolution, and sug-

the more appreciable. The people of the peop favour of the candidate who would support the trade!

The resolution was unanimously passed.

Mrij P R Myamara quite agreed that a Protective Trade As-colation was necessary.

The Chairman remarked that he meeting had been called for a specific object—for the purpose of subscribing to the association, and he considered it rather premature to go into any other matter.

On the imotion of Mr M'Numara, a warm vote of thanks was passed to Mr Quin for his action in supporting the association and for the dignity with which he conducted the proceedings.

Mri Quin replying, said tie would always be glad to give his apport to lany movement conductive to the interests of theicity.

The meeting then adjoured.
