THE SAID FATALITY TO DEATH OF MR WM LANE. MR, R. J. KANE.

We briefly published in our last issue the sad and statisting intelligence that Mr Richard J. Kane. ol. Whiteball. Ratteen, had, on Thursday atternoon, lost; his life through a gun accident.

JOYNT, D.L. We deeply regret to have to announce the death of Mr William Lane-Joynt, D.L. which took place at his residence, 43; Merrion Square, Dutlin, on the 3rd instant. During his early afternoon, lost; his life through a gun accident. The painful news created a shock throughout the city, where Mr Kand was to highly selected and so familiarly known. It was only or the previous day that he was in town, and was then inhist usual good health and spirits. Taken away in the prime of life, his tragic and is deeply deplored, and the utmost sympathy is expressed with his family and relatives in their affliction. The fatality is believed to have occurred in this way. Mr Kane, who was very fond of shooting, said, indeed, of sport generally, left his house before two ciock, testing with him a gun and his dogs. He proceeded through a strubbery, which is bounded by a stream running into hes Shannon, and it was evidently his intention to go along the bank in a upward dicetton, where good plover shooting is to be had. A winding pathway passes through the shrubbery, on one side being the stream Mr Kane left his gun, which was on full lock, recting against a tree (the mark of the butt of the, seapon was to be seen yesterday) probably for the purpose of eaching him to light a signarette. It is alignment that of the butt of the, seapon was to be seen yesterday) probably for the purpose of anabling him to light a signarette. It is alignment that the this purchase the signature the dogs put up, a livid, and Mr Kane, hurriedly snatching his gun, the riggers causht in a larger branch—a quantity of which are lying about, as the heedy chase recordly been clipped—with the result that the charge went off, and, entering he cheet alone where the search of the shall be a dreadful wound, and caused, he doubt, find a dreadful wound, and caused, he doubt, find a dreadful wound, and caused, he doubt, for the purpose of the same outstand of the shall be a dreadful wound, and caused, he doubt, for the purpose of the same outstand of the same hours affect warde in a far and the same outstand when the same hours affect warde in a far and the same outstand when the same have a fort of which was contained the same outstand the same The painful news created a shock throughout the pletion of his indeatures, and worked at his profession here. He soon distinguished himself by successfully setting up the salmon weirs on the Lower Shannon on the point which the raised, that the foreshore, to which the weirs are attached, belongs to, and is in the poasession of the landlord. The celebrated case of O'Brien v. White, by which it is decided that friend frame incapable of being tilled, were sacluded from the Land Acts, also owes its existence to his professional keenness and abjitty. Up to 1886 Mr Lane-Joynt was a strong biberal in politics. For several years he was chief electioneering agent of that patry in this country, and conducted the elections of Sir John Gray in Monaghan, Colinel Luke White in the County Dublin, and Col. Chas. White in Tipperary. In 1886 Dublin, and Col. Chas, White in Tipperary. In 1856 prominent part in public anairs. He was, one of the founders of the Attenuum, and collected the principal amount of the money for its building and endowment. He filled the office of Clerk of the Crown for the city for some 12 years, previous to 1899, only resigning it on his appointment as Crown and Tressury Solicitor in Iteland. He also acted for many years as Law, Agent to the Corporation, and was successively elected an Alderman of the Abbey Ward, a member of the Hatbour Board, and was Mayor in 1862. During his Mayoratly Lord Carlisle, the then Viceroy, visited the great Agricultural Show in this city, and on that occasion Mr. UnnerJoynt was offered a knighthood, an honour which the however, declined. "Cogether with other provincial Mayors of this year he was are constantly shooting about the place. The accident occurred vitbin 50 yards of the fall-door. The circumstances of the case were mainly deposed to at the inquest, a report of which we subjoin.

The funeral will leave Whitehall at one o'dlock to-morrow (Sunday) for 85 Munchin's.

Yesterday, at 12 o'dlock, Mr. Coroner Fost, with the following jury held an inquest at Whitehall on the body of the decessed:—George ciloster (Foreman), Thomas Hartigan, Pharick Lane, John Sheeban, Martiu Hamilton, John Dongshued Martin Klänen, John Mofelym, Michael Kane, Robert Boyle, Edward-Hennessy, Thomas Woulde, Sergeant Fliggibbon, Farteen, conducted the interal Show in this city, and on that occasion Mr. Lane-Joynt was offered a knighthood, an honour which he, however, declined. Together, with other provincial Mayors of this year he was appointed a trustee of the Daniel New Assippointed a trustee of the Daniel O'Connell Memorial, and was one of the few who had the satisfaction of seeing this National tribute completed in a manner worthy of our great country-man. In the following-gear 1863 M. Lane-Joynt Filmowed to Dublin, but throughout his whole life he continued to take a deep interest in the safairs of his native, city: Elected in 1864 Councillor, and subsequently Alderman, for the Rotunds Warl, he became Lord Mayor in 1867, bung one of the very few public men who have want as a special delegate from Ireland to the Great International Exhibition at Paris, where the Legion of Honour, was offered to him by Napoleon III. For several years he was one of the Port and Ducks Board, and also a member of the Board of Iriel Lights. It was owing to his influence with this aBoard that the lighthouse at the entrance to Kilmonn Harbour in the ladmaded Arran was erested. Through the triendship of Henry Baron Annaly, and his son, Cal Charles (M. White, high obtained in 1884, the appointment of Crown and Treasury Solicitor in Ireland, the highest position in this country to which a solicion could attain, and filled that office until its abolition in 1887, the appointment of Crown and Treasury Solicitor in Ireland, the highest position in this country to which a solicion could attain, and filled that office until its abolition in 1887, As a hand agent, Mr Lanes-Joynt was always for friendly because with the tenants with whom he came in contact, and it was at his gaugestion that the late Col Charles White, with a noble generoeily, provided his tenantity wand the public on his Ballywanghan estate, in the Country of Clare, with a free water supply, at a cost of upwards of 22,500. Mr Lane-Joynt always took a deep interest in literature. He was Vice-Fre-Tidient of the Association Michael Kan-, Robet Boyle, Edward. Hennessy, Michael Kan-, Robet Boyle, Edward. Hennessy, Zhumas Woulfe, Sergeant Flaggibbon, Parteen, conducted the proceedings. Mr H G Barry, JP, and Mr W Healy, solicitot, Enns, brothers-in-law of the deceased, wer present, as also District Impector Cottingham, of Sixinile-Bridge.

Bridget Normoyle, an intelligent old woman, ideposed—I am a hiopsekeeper in the employment of the late Mr Kane for nearly four years; the last time I saw him alive was about 12 o'flock on yesterday; he was coming up from the house and I gave him acup of ten; he need to take tea at noon; he was quite well then; I did not see him afterwards slive; Mrs Kane was in from in the earlier part of the day, but returned about these; the master used always be impatient to meet her; and as there was no sign of, him she asked Whege he was, and I could not say; we were surprised—in the evening that he was not about, and we were getting nervous; it struck me that he might have fallen into the 'tver; Mrs Kane sen the servant down to see was he in the garden, bit he was not there; she bould get no Irace of him; I went out, and wend down along-towards the garden gate and cried out. "Are you there, Mr. Kane"; I got no shawe, hut be little dog came in pan de began to 'yelp, and bark; "Jp;" said!

THE "INISHTRABULL" NO TIDINGS OF THE VESSEL

No fews has been received either in Glasgow or Limerick of the missing Clyde Shipping Comor spectators, including many ladies, whose athandance added pleasing in areast to the proceed of her is now abandoned. It is surmised that the weekage which has been washed ashare at the weekage which has been washed ashare at Kilkee, as reported in our last issue, isconnected with the "Inishtrahul," hut of his there is no absolute proof. It would ppear from the particulars supplied by the Consequence of the Hyure, the Receiver of treats at inserted, the the North Inistrict looks distantiated on the Receiver of the Consequence of the Hyure, the Receiver of the Consequence of the Section of the Consequence of the Hyure, the Receiver of the Consequence of the Hyure, the Receiver of the Consequence of the Section of the Consequence of the Consequence of the Receiver of the Consequence of t lore any marks of identification. All those were found in Klikes Bay. In "Onlineny Bay." (Killegs) two circs—one 16 leer and the other 15—were picked up, and on the shore of the same bay was found a circular life-belt painbed white, but with no marks. Seafaring men with whom we been lost somewhere off the Clare const, and there was a poken believe that the stewner must have been lost somewhere off the Clare const, and there was to the callent occurred. But on thase it is, of course, did to speculate. A faint hope still exist that the vessel, becoming disabled, through the breakdown of her mothinery, may have defilted out to sea, but undoubtedly the prospects of her safety are gloomy in the extreme. We have been unable to obtain an official list of the crew, 25 in all, which is kept in Glasgiow, but we learn it includes the following:—Captain Those Whipp (Master); First Officer, Greenless, First Brignese, Edmungon; Cappenter, O'Caliaghan, who belongs to Cort; FiremanCrowe, and Mahony, Anderson, O'Brien, and Impram, belonging to Limerick' Anderson and largem, we not Limerick under the company to the company this evening we learned that the were no tidings to hand of the missing jessel.

Glasgow, Friday.

offices of the Company this evening we learned that the were no tidings to hand of the missing years.

The Clyde Shipping Company has now abandoned all hope of the safety or the steamer Inshirabull, which lately arised, from Glasgow to Limerick, with twenty-one hands. Several of the crew hailed from Limerick, but the owners at present decline to give their names. They say, however, that portion of a heat, with a brasplate picked up yesterday at Kilkee belonged to the Injahrahull.

The steamer left Glasgow on last Thursday week, with a crew of 26 hands, and a cargo of coal in flag holds. She was out during the recent heavy galgs, and must have felt their force. Had the course been diven Channel the captain could have arailed himself of the shelter of the coast down to the Tusker, but unfortunately the line of direction was around the north of Ireland, and down the west coast. The Inishtrabull should have been well to the west when the gales turst. She must have been caught by the transulously heavy "send" of the Atlantic, which was running in mountains, and which almost overwhelmed the Allan Liner Sarnia, is couple of hundred unlies from our coast. Once past the Dongal seaboard her experiences were bound to be terrible, having regard to, the condition of the weather. The coast line is terribly wild and rooky, and the sees ran against it with rearful fury. If the Inishtrabull held on her coarse she received mountainous areas against the starboard beam, and it is easy for anyone with a nattical knowledge to see that she must have rolled and pitched frightfully. Her cargo was a large one, but it is within the range of posibility that the rolling caused it to shift; heeled the steamer over, and threw her into the trough of the saw, where, in her peachculy disabled condition, she would almost exclusing high the same shore. After such a layee of time it is unfor the same shore. was a large one, but it is within the range of possibility that the rolling caused it to shift, heeled the ateamer over, and threw her into the trough of the see, where, in her practically disabled condition, she would almost extendly meet the fare that has overtaken many a ship off the same above. After such a lapse of time, it is, unfortunately, did to a cept the Company's suggestion that this linistrahull was disabled but safe in some of the west-coast creeks. Were this the case, she must for a certainty have been seen by the coastguard patrols, the fishermen, the peasantry, or passing vessels. These is nothing to sustain the theory, and with relicitance it must be concluded that the Inshtrahull is below the waves—that her usune, is destined to appear in the catalogue of ships that have gone down off the the wild west as-aboard. Some of the crew were natives of Liourrick, and in their homes and among their friends there is much sadness at the present mouent. The acents of the company refuse to give the names of the men.
The Receiver of Wrecks for the district has been given portion of a ship's boat found at Kilkes, on the Clare coast, within a few miles of Loop Hend, where the steamer would alpre its course to get up the Shannon. The piece of flotsam has on it in brase letters the word "Gisgows." The boats of the company's ships bear on their bows brass humbers, and on the stern 48so brass letters-the ships name and port of registry, which is Glasgow. The fact that the Inistrahull should be down the coast during the gales, coupled with the finding of this timber so marked and the absence of tidings of the steamer leads to the find on the stern 48so brass letters-the ships name and port of registry, which is Glasgow. The fact that the Inistrahull should be down the coast during the steamer Wicklow sank also on the South coast. A boat of the only in a steamer

The beginning of the second period was opened by an urvasion of the visitors grounds by the Northmen, and J O'Connor intercepting a pass was nearly scoring, but Hafely stopped effectively. Peel then got the leather, and passed to T O'Connor, but Forde and McCar, and Dargen could not be overcome, and the Cock forwards made a rush carrying the ball to midfield, where the home team got a free, but the ball was returned in grand style, and for the first time the visitors looked damigerous, playing with great dash and missing no opportunity. Resulting from a serimmage at the home 25 line, the Southerns working with great tact, gave the home men a great-field of trouble, but no further sooning took place, and the game resulted in favour of North Munster by 2 trees (6 points) to 1 penalty 'goot' (3 products).
