MR J. F. BANNATYNE, D.L.

At a meeting of the Corporation to-day, Alder-man Hall said it was within their knowledge man Hall said it was within their knowledge that one of the leading merchants of the South of freland, and certainly the leading merchant of Limerick, had just relevered from a very severe and dangerous siness, and it would well become them as representing the citizens of Limerick to offer their congratulations to Mr and Mrs Bannatyne (hear, hear), and with their permission he would propose the following resolution:—

"That we, the representatives of the citizens at large, hereby offer our sincere congratulations to Mr J F Bannatyne on his recovery from his late severe illness, and hope for his speedy restoration to perfect health, and pray he may be a ared for many years to his amiable wife and children, as also to the trade and commerce of Limerick, of which he is the deservedly restoration to perfect health, and pray he may be a ared for many years to his amiable wite and children, as also to the trade and commerce of Limerick, of which he is the descreedly popular head."

Mr James O'Mars, J P, said that nothing could the head to be a second the se popular head."

Mr James O'Mara, JP, said that nothing couldaford hm greater pleasure than to second the resolution. Mr Baphatyne would be a veryserious loss if anything occurred to him, but thank God he was now in good health (applause).

The Mapor—Bafore putting that resolution, which I am perfectly satisfied will be received not only unanimously by the Council, but by every citizen of Limedek, I think it only right to give you one, instance of Mr Bannatyne's goddness. His firm jave not only a very large contribution to the Feel Fund, but Mr Bannatyne, ill and all as he was, when it came to his knowledge that the poor were badly in want of more fuel, sent a cheque for 250 to myself for Mr Spillane to devote to the Fuel Fund. He intended that as, and marked it private
Mt after all I could not conceal his goodness.
That is only one instance of his munificence. A greater calsainty or a more serious lose the city never could sustain than if anything had occurred to Mr Bannatyne, but I am proud to tell you he is now well, and will be out amongst his fellow-citizens in a few days (applause).

The resolution was passed unanimously.

THE MAILS QUESTION.

To-day at the meeting of the Corporation, Alderman Hall referred to the mails question.

Aderman Hall referred to the mails question. And said that in this matter they should take pattern by Scotland, because its people were Scotchmen first and everything else after. He believed that if there was an unanimous expression of opinion—as there was from the public diese and from the Members of Parliament, this Government, or any other Government, could not treat their demand with contempt. He moved the following resolution:—
"That, considering the vast interests involved, sind the vital importance not slone to Ireland, but also to England, Stotland, and Walse, to have the question of the new arrangements for carrying the mails to and from these countries and America settled on a fair and lasting basis, we hereby call on the Postmaster General to consider the tender No 2 of the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company, which appears to embrace silthat is required by the several public bodies in this country and Great Britan which have expressed their opinions on the subject, and if necessary, to again confer with the Steam Company, whom we are convined with meet the have expressed their opinions on the subject, and if necessary, to again confer with the Steam Company, whom we are convinced will meet the wishes of the Government if put before them in the spirit that a matter of such importance to the Imperial interests involved deserve. To-day, being New Year's Day, the customary To-day, being New Year's Day, the customary special meeting of the Town Guncil was held in the Council Chamber, Town Hal, for the purpose of installing into office the Mayor, Mr B O'Dondell, and the High Sheriff, Alderman P Kenna. Mr O'Dongell was on the 1st December last elected for a third time without opposition, and on the same occasion Mr Kenna was placed for the the list for the Sheriestly and having first on the list for the Shrievalty, and having since been appointed by his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, he now holds office for the second year. Both the Mayor and High Sheriff are Parnellites, and there was to-day a large attendance of the members of that party in the Council. Several Federationists were also present, though some prominent gentlemen of that way of thinking were absent. The total attendance numbered about twenty-eight out of the forty who comprise the Council. The proceedings were of a very harmonious character, and were watched by a large number of the general public smongst whom were—Dr O'Shaughnessy, J P; Mr James Flynn, Mr McSweeney, Major Kenny, Mr. C H Fitt, Sub-Sheriff, etc. In honour of the occasion the Council Chamber was very tastefully decorated by Mr Bourke, the gardener of the People's Park. The paintings gasaliers, and the People's Park. The paintings gasaners, and the canopy over the Mayor's chair, which is now being completed, were liberally festponed with evergeons, and on the tables were placed a number of potted plants including off-Janthemums; primulas, cinnerarias, and az dets, whose variety primulas, cinnerarinis, and as 10sts, wides variety of color produced a very happy result. At twenty minutes to one, the Mayor, wearing his robes of office and accompanied by the Town Clerk, bentered the Council Chamber, being attended by the City High Constable (Mr James golry of cocked hats and gold face. The procession was very warmly received as is passed up the room.

The Town Clerk having called the roll, and read the declaration of the Mayor on accepting the office, and which was made before Alderman Riordan, and Mr Joseph Gaffiey,

The Mayor rose to address the Council, and was received with continued applause from the audience. In his speech his worship said his duty on the occasion would be formal as he had the honour for the third time of installing himself as Mayor of their ancient city ((applause), thanks Mayor of their ancient city ((applause)), thanks to the good feeling and the kindness of his fellow effizers and the members of the Corporation that he had been so long, and he hoped so honorably, connected with. In returning thanks be felt at a loss for words to express himself ones more for the compliment they had paid him, and which was wholly undeserved. He was conscious, however, that he did his duty fairly if not well, and that he had acted as the Mayor of Limerick and not the Mayor of any particular party (hear, hear). He trustedly he had faithfully fulfilled in his duty what he had pronised two years ago, and carried out his promises without offending anybody who may have differed with him politically or religiously (applause). He hoped sincerely that his conduct in the past would be his guide for the future, and that the new water work windness he had expreienced in the Council and from his fellow-citizens would continue, and that on that day twelve months when he resigned office he trusted they would have the same good opinion of him as they had that day. He had noticed since he had the honor of becoming Mayor, that every member of the council treated his ruling with the umbat respect, and he attributed that to the fact that each and every gentleman was intelligent enough the coming year, and he was such he could appeal to every member of the council to assist him in carrying out it; duties. As Councillors, Aldermen, and Mayor they had endeavoured in the past to do their duty for their fellow-citizens. Play might have their drawbacks, but in general everything was done as well as was expected, and everything was above-board and straightforward. During the last month the Local Government and the was allowed the confidence of the Corporation, and the Press and the public were freely invited to attend it. The affairs of the Corporation went through a thorough searching, and he was glad to say that the officers of the Corporation went through a thorough in the future deucation, with flying colours (applau to the good feeling and the kindness of his fellowcitizens and the members of the Corporation that
