Reign, told by Sir Herbert Maxwell, Bart, M.P." The first part was published yesterday. It is turned out in a highly artistic style, and printed on paper of a very rich and detable quality. There is a coloured photo representing the Queen shortly after her accession, in her robes of State, and this is produced from a painting lent by her Majesty to the publishers for that purpose. There are numerous sugravings illustrative of the march of pregress in science during the Queen's Reign—the telegraph, the steamboat, and the lecomotive. It is highly interesting and wonderfully cheap at sixpence a copy. We feel certain the series will be highly prized throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

NEW FACTORY AND COOPERAGE WORKS, AT MESSRS SPAIGHTS.

It will be seen by advertisement that the old established firm of Francis Spaight and Sons have introduced into their saw mill extensive machinery for the turn out of boxes suited to the butter, egg, and fish trades; also cases, kegs, etc. of any size that may be required. The name of Messrs Spaight & Sons is sufficient to guarantee that those of the business community requiring these goods will obtain every satisfaction at this firm.

A WOMAN CHARGED WITH BIGAMY.

At the Police Court this morning, before Dr O'Shaughnessy, a woman of respectable appearance named Catherine Shanahan, was charged by Sergeant Fitzgibbon with bigamy. An information made by the Sergeant stated he arrested the accused this morning, a description contained in the "Hue and Cry" for 31st July, '94. The charge against her was for having married James Elmo in St Michael's Catholic Church, Limerick, on 8th June, '91, while her lawful husband, Edmund, was, and is still, living in Newcastle (West, The accused made a statement after arrest, in which she said she was frightened into marrying Elmo, and did not want to marry him. They were married in St Patrick's Catholic Church, and the Priest who married them had since died. She left Elmo after some time, as a Priest to whom she mentioned the circumstances told her it was not right for her to live with him. She was remanded in custody to enable the police to make further inquiries.

SUICIDE AT PALLASGREAN.—An inquest was held at Newpallas yesterday by Mr Coroner Cleary on the body of Mary Keaty, wife of a farmer residing in the locality, and who is also a ganger on the Waterford line. The poor woman was found dead in her house on Thursday morning, with blood flowing from a wound on the neck, and there was a razor close by the hody. Deceased had four children, and her husband last says her alive on Thursday morning, when she appeared in her usual good health, but seemed despendent for two or three days previously. She had been treated by Dr O'Callaghan for nervousness. The jury found a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane.
