

off those now on the roll, was strongly urged by Alderman Hall. He and his colleague, Mr Bruin, had given the matter their most serious attention, and they came to the conclusion that every one already on the roll had a prima facie right to be there until they were objected to, and reason shown why they should come off.

The Town Clerk—That was legally held.

Mr Switzer—I see what you have stated legally upholds the course we adopted. We objected last year to put on anyone under £10, and we equally objected to put any one off not objected to. We would be acting if we did so as prosecutors at one time and judges at another.

Mr Nelson—I think it would be very unfair to disfranchise any people of £8 valuation, and who were not objected to. I was one of the objectors on yester day, and we had to serve the legal form of objection, and I think it would be very unfair now to have persons struck off who did not get notice.

The completion of the lists was then proceeded with.
