provinces in the horrors of war because Crete is not at once to be annexed to the Greek kingdom; Mr Curzon completely vindicated the refusal of the British Government to separate itself from the European Concert. Such a separation could do nothing for Greece or Crete, and would, moreover, be in itself a cowardly policy. It should hardly be necessary to prove that England is not propping up the Turkish Empire.
The integrity of Turkey is, as Mr Curzon aptly put it, the most elastic formula in the world; it means simply that inevitable dissolution is to be a gradual and not a violent process, and to be so ordered as not to bring about the danger of a general war.—Globe.

THE COMING SMASH OF THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

The Daily News Rome correspondent telegraphs —Although the arrival of the Prince of Montenegro is officially announced to have no political significance, being merely a family affair, I am assured that the visit is connected with the Levent question. In fact after dining at Court, the Prince had last night a lengthy interview with the Minister of Foreign Affairs.
It is rumoured that in meeting Queen Victoria, and in his visit to Rome, the Prince is preparing the ground for his grab. When Turkey breaks up, Montenegro's intention to have Scrutari has never been concealed.
