REASONMENT FOR REFUSING TO GO TO SEA.

sailors belonging to the ship Glenard—went ashore at Dungeness last week and off by five tugs—were charged at Deal on Monday with refusing to go to sea. The men stated that the vessel had got strained while and was unseaworthy. Marine surveyors had examined the vessel and gave evidence that she was perfectly seaworthy, but the sailors persisted in their refusal to sail in her, and were sentenced to six weeks' hard labour. One of the men who pleaded illness, was subsequently discharged.

men on board the steamship Novembre, Salford Docks, were last afternoon overcome by the fumes from the smouldering cargo they were endeavouring to unload. One man succumbed, and the other three are reported to be in a critical condition.
