statement made on oath by a witness since de- ceased, in a matter between the same parties relating to the same issue and before the same court. There is no doubt whatever that this is evidence as to what the witness actually stated, he being subjected to cross-examination, that there is evidence in this dis- ute between the same parties relative to the same affair, and I am not aware that it is necessary to have the very best evidence given; but it is open to the infirmity that Mr. Kelly suggests.

Mr. Blackall was examined as to what the witness said, and said he did not recollect the cross-examination.

Mr. Kelly then addressed the court, and con- tended that the tenant had not discharged the onus of showing that he had made all the build- ings.

Judgment was reserved, and the court ad- journed.
