BRAND FOR IRISH HERRINGS.

An interesting discussion, relating to the Deep Sea Fisheries, with a view to devising means for their development and protection, took place in busy year of it. I wore the Dublin—at the Lord Mayor's inauguration and at the O'Connell Centenary wear it when I attended the rifle between the American and Irish Rifles. I did not go there in my representative capacity.

I wore it once in Cork, Waterford and Clonmel, and in London during the festivities given by the Lord Mayor of London to all the Mayors of the Kingdom. In all these cases I was representative of Limerick by their wish. And a case more to the point, I was introduced to many official occasions as Mayor of Limerick, but in my official capacity, at the request of the Council, I did not go with me. It was locked up in my safe.

You refer to the risk of such a loom being lost. Many years ago a loom being lost at the old Newcastle race meeting. No Mayor ever before as far as I know) wore it on official occasions, and representative of Limerick.

To show you how careful I was of my inauguration I had it weighed by Mr. Sterling, and the day I got my certificate of weight, and I was pleased when I got rid of the loom, its safe-keeping, as it is a valuable old city. The small chain which is no longer one is very much older than the links. There was no chain of Hall, London in 1875 so much as of those present, including the Prefect of Seine, &c., &c.

Thanking you in anticipation,
Yours, etc.,

Mignon, April 2nd, 1901.

MARGARINE FRAUDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE LIMERICK FREE PRESS.
Public Creamery
Limerick

DEAR SIR,—I send you herewith Agriculturist, as the article "Protective Hearing on Oleo" will interest the district, because we have the reasons to echo the last sentence of our own Department of Agriculture: "The fraudulent sale of margarine."

Although the Irish Department know well that tons of margarine are sold in Irish towns as butter, authorities are either too interested to take proper and effective measures to stop this fraud, still nothing can be done by the Department of Agriculture to take the suppression of this and other frauds, robbing both the agricultural consumer, and the man who has sold under their legal names. No one can be helped by these frauds but a few retailing 1s for what would leave them at 9d. Had margarine been sold at 1s, for the past twenty years, the times as much of it used as the honest retailers would have sold to customers at its value, and no good margarine once would be sold as secondary butter.

Thus everyone would benefit of a most valuable article, and
