A special meeting of the Borough Council has been convened for next Thursday night. Amongst the matters down for consideration is the offer of £1,000 made by the Most Rev Dr. O'Dwyer on behalf of the Limerick Artizans' Dwellings Company for the building site on the Nicholas street area.

We are authorised to contradict the statement which appeared in a local contemporary last evening, that the City High Sheriff, Mr. Vincent Nash, D.L., is contemplating resignation of office. There is no such intention on the part of the Sheriff, and no foundation whatever for the rumour.

He had been working in the garden, and not returning at the usual time, a messenger was sent out, only to find the poor man lying dead beside the spade which he had been using. Deceased was about 58 years of age, and death is attributed to heart disease.

Kinvarra lamb fair will be held on Wednesday next. The fair is now so well established that farmers would consult their own interests best by patronising it, and buyers can rely on the sound and thriving quality of the stock exhibited and raised in the Kinvarra and surrounding district.

As a result of Analysis of a series of samples of tea from the tendering parties to the Kiltrush Board of Guardians, Sir Charles Cameron declared the tea of Mr. Patrick O'Reilly, Moore-street to be the best, and the contract for the half-years supply to the Institution was accordingly awarded to him.

The motion of Mr. Keane to make the area of charge for the Abbeyfeale water supply a union charge was on Thursday postponed by the Newcastle West District Council on a promise from Mr. O'Connor to get a guarantee that those who would have the water in their houses would pay for it, and that no other division would suffer.

The Central Council of the Land and Labour Association at its meeting in Limerick yesterday, Lord Emily presiding, discussed the Chief Secretary's amendment to the Labourers Act, and passed a resolution declaring "that such amendment instead of extending the usefulness of these Acts would limit their operation in a most unjust way, and would exclude a large number of agricultural labourers proper who have been hitherto entitled to any advantages conferred."

DINNER TO THE POOR AT RATHKEALE.

General Lloyd and his lady, whose late sad bereavement was so deeply felt by all classes, has again shown one of his many acts of general benevolence by giving a substantial dinner to 500 families of the poor of Rathkeale. Many a blessing and many a prayer was offered up for the General and his good lady from the humble homesteads which he has made happy. The General and his lady gave a sumptuous day's outing and tea-party to the school children. A special trained choir of school children sang again and again "God save the King," "God bless the Prince of Wales," "Rule Britannia." The beautiful grounds of Beechmount looked their best, and it was really a treat to see the happy little children running through that ideal "Richmond" and boating on that fairy lake. Mrs. Lloyd and the General seemed very happy as they watched these innocent little children, as they romped and rollicked to their heart's content. It is to be regretted that there are not many in the country of the genuine old aristocratic blood of the General and his lady, who make it part of their lives to scatter the blessings that God has bestowed on them on their fellow-beings—to cheer the hearts of the poor, to make happy the life of the child, and to make all live in peace and good-fellowship. Long and happy may they live, this is the prayer of every individual of Rathkeale.

THE RECENT BATHING FATALITY.

The body of Charles James, aged 15, who was accidentally drowned on Monday evening last at the King's Island when bathing with a comrade boy named Michael Cleary, was found this morning near the place where it was seen to sink, by Michael Farrell, fisherman. An inquest was held this afternoon by Mr. Coroner DeCourcy, the evidence showing that both boys swam across the river, and while returning, James disappeared below the water. The jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.
