CAPPA PIER.

HAGGLING F. R. PRICES.

At the Kilrush Harbour Board meeting, Mr.
Ronan, Vandeleur Street, tendered for the proposed new works at Cappa Pier at £355 18s.

The Surveyor (Mr. Morrissy) on being asked what his estimate was, declined to give any information until such time as his position was clearly defined, for on the last night he was told by a member that he was not an official of the Harbour Board at all. He had to prepare three sets of plans and specifications, and his charge was £10, and £1 10s a week if he had to superintend the works during construction.

Mr. Culligan suggested £7 for the plans, &c., and £1 5s a week for overseeing.

Mr. Morrissy agreed to this.

Mr. O'Dwyer objected to this amalgamation. Let them purchase the plans first.

Finally it was arranged to give £9 9s for the plans, and let the other matter stand over until a reply would be received from Mr. Ronan on the Board's offer of £300 to carry out the work. The estimated cost was £280.

CROOM STUDENT DROWNED.

The Press Association says:—A clerical student named Daniel Bennett, a native of Croom, Co.
Limerick, was drowned on Saturday evening at Ballybunion, Co. Kerry.

It would seem that deceased after undressing plunged into the water and as he never rose to the surface, he must have been carried away by the powerful back wash which is a peculiarity of these waters. A companion who was with him had a narrow escape too, as when he reached the shore he was in an exhausted condition.

After the fatality the cliffs and beach were crowded with spectators who were momentarily expecting the sea would give up its dead. To his family and relatives the sympathies of all go out in their great sorrow.

REDUCTION OF THE R.I.C.

The "Belfast Telegraph" is in a position to state that concurrently with the Land Bill becoming law the Royal Irish Constabulary force will be considerably reduced. A few days ago a circular was issued to County Inspectors calling upon them to retire all members of the force over a certain age-limit, including all ranks from Head Constable down. There are to be no further promotions from the ranks of District-Inspectorships. Recruiting was stopped a month ago.

HARRIS'S MACHINE MADE BEARD.

the best calculate to yield such results; and, thirdly, to manage the birds properly when you have acquired possession of them. It must be remembered, therefore, that some breeds of poultry excel as table fowl, and others as layers, just as some varieties of cattle yield beef and others milk; that some varieties of fowl are adapted for confinement in circumscribed runs, whilst others pine and languish unless permitted their liberty; and, finally, that however carefully a poultry-keeper may have selected his stock, he cannot possibly expect that the latter will do adequate justice to themselves unless they are housed, fed, and attended to in a proper manner.

All these subjects will be dealt with in succeeding articles under the above heading, and if the advice therein given, which is the result of many long years of experience, is followed out it is confidently believed that the profits of poultry-keeping will be increased.

[The poultry articles will include amongst others chapters on—The Erection and Selection of Sites for Houses and Runs; The Selection of a Breed; The Different Varieties; Fancy Fowls; Utility Fowls; General Management; Rearing Chickens; Marketing Poultry Produce; Exhibiting Pens; Diseases and their Treatment; and will be continued regularly every Tuesday. ED.

DEATH OF MR. SYNAN McAULIFFE.

After a long continued illness Mr. Synan McAuliffe, of Knock, Co. Clare, breathed his last on Saturday. Many in Glin, with which place he had always been connected by ties of family and property, as well as in his native Clare, will mourn his death, which, though not unexpected, came at last all too quickly. Deceased farmed on a very extensive scale, and as he possessed valuable fishing interests on the Shannon he was a large employer of labour. West Clare will be a loser by the death of Mr. McAuliffe, for he was most enterprising and successful in his undertakings.

KILRUSH GAS WORKS.

At the Kilrush Council meeting, it was decided to reduce the bank bill, on which £50 is owing, to £10. No action was taken as so the waste, which was said to equal £50 a year, or coal debt of £72 due to the colliery on the same concern.

Is there a better way to sell Fels-Naptha than for the grocer to say:

"You will find it several times

If not, I'll give you back your
