BOOKED AHEAD.

A good story, contributed by Mr. Stroud, of the Solicitors' Department of the G.P.O., appears in St.
Martin's Le Grand. One of the American States had a law that alcohol could only be sold by States dispensers as a cure for rattlesnake bite. A man called at a State dispensary, and asked for some spirits, as he felt sick. The dispenser explained that although he had been allowed to sell alcohol the previous year on the ground of sickness, the law has since being altered, and he was now permitted to sell it only as a cure for rattlesnake bite. The applicant was much disappointed, and looked very sick indeed. After a moment or two, plunged in thought, he said:—"Say, now, is there a rattlesnake anywhere down town?"
The State dispenser, after severe cogitation, replied, 'Waal, yes, stranger, there is. But he'll be no sort of good to you, for he's booked up six weeks' ahead?'

TRAGEDY IN WEST LIMERICK.

A lamentable occurrence is reported to have taken place a few days ago at Ballyvologue, near Ballingarry, resulting in the death of an old and respectable resident named Mrs. O'Mahony, who resided with her son-in-law, Mr. Thomas O'Connor, a farmer, and one of the most popular men in the district. It appears that the old lady had been alone in the house, and on the return of Mr.
O'Connor and his family one of the children discovered the unfortunate old lady in a room bleeding profusely from a wound in the forearm, evidently inflicted with a razor. It appears the poor woman had been suffering from some ailment near the toes, and in order to relieve the pain she got the razor for the purpose, and foolishly stropped the implement on the forearm, thus causing the wound. Everything possible was done for the sufferer, who was attended by Father Culhane, C.C., and Dr. Studdert, but she died some hours afterwards. Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor in their affliction.

PHYSIQUE OF ARMY RECRUITS

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

A memorandum issued to-day by the Director General Army Medical Service on the physical unfitness of men offering themselves for enlistment in the army, states that an inquiry on the subject might fitly be undertaken by a Commission. It is suggested that the Secretary of State might take the initiative in the matter of getting the opinions of Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons regarding the necessity for inquiry, and the scope and composition of the Commission if appointed.
