

CLERGYMAN'S ACTION.

DAMAGES AGAINST THE "DAILY MAIL."

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

King's Bench to-day, Rev. Robert Lang, vicar of All Saints, Rockwell, Wellington, Somerset, was awarded damages against the "Daily Mail" for making a statement that in the plaintiff's 7 school cigars and cigarettes were given to induce them to attend the school and that this was done with the vicar's consent. The defendants had put forward an

is the question which will be put to-night during the remainder of the week from the Theatre Royal. It will be put in the most of ways too, and the answer as evolved in the course of the play bearing the title "Are You a Mason?" is one that will cause the greatest hilarity to all who can appreciate harmless innocent fun. It must not be imagined that the comedy—for that is what "Are You a Mason?" is—contains any covert attack on Masonry, nor need any who visit it be afraid of revelations of secrets of the true order being

The comedy is based on supposed Masonic secrets, and what they lead to is shown in the most humorous fashion from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The Company which will perform the comedy comes with very good recommendations from the Press, "A really good clever play," says one of the leading journals, and this opinion in other words endorsed by the whole of the Press of Dublin, crowded and enthusiastic houses received numerous elements with the heartiest applause. We can, therefore, cordially recommend a visit to the Theatre Royal to-night and during the week, not only as a means of spending pleasant and jolly time, but as a preventive and cure of "the blues" or melancholy of any sort, "care to our coffin adds a nail no doubt, every laugh you see merry draws one out," every one will appreciate "Are You a Mason?"—perhaps, the undertakers.

DEATH OF MR. JOSEPH F. Woulfe.

We regret very much to record the death of Mr. Joseph F. Woulfe, only son of the City Treasurer, which took place at his residence, Athlunkard street, last evening after a brief illness. Deceased, who was quite a young man, had been intended for the priesthood, but owing to delicate health was obliged to relinquish his studies. For several years past he has been an assistant to his father, and proved himself an accountant of exceptional ability, his work being frequently spoken of most favourably by successive Local Government Board Auditors. He leaves a widow and child to mourn his loss, and great sympathy is expressed with them as well as with his respected father (himself a very old official of the Corporation) in their great sorrow.

SHANNON CYCLES IN CAPE COLONY.

Mr. J. H. Lendrom, of the Standard Bank of South Africa, writes

Aliwal North, Cape Colony,

January 30th, 1904.

DEAR SIRS,—I am pleased to testify that the "Special Shannon" Bicycle I purchased from you in April, 1902, has given every satisfaction. Since the day you delivered the machine to me, I have not had to adjust a single nut. It runs as smoothly to-day as when I rode it in Ireland, and this in itself speaks volumes for it, as we are subjected to very severe dust storms, which in nine cases out of ten, play havoc with the bearings.

I hope that your machines will always receive the merit due to them.

(Signed),

J. H. LENDROM.
