THE DANCERS AND THE HANGINGS.

"A WRETCHED CASE."

at the Quarter Sessions on Tuesday his Honor ge Adams gave a verdict of 7s 6d to James anon, who sued the Committee of a Quadrille ss to recover £5 damages for injury alleged to e been done to his property by the defendants tearing down hangings, etc.
 The complaint was that the members of a class re leaving a hall which they had rented from plainant they tore down calico, cretonne, and vass, covering the walls, to the value of £3.
 His Honor—"They broke the lovely windies ng with curtains from the Indies (laughter).
 The defense was that only the materials put up the defendants or previous members of the drille Class were removed and that a glass was broken or any harm done.
 e plaintiff gave only two days' notice that required possession, and when the members ne to dance they found the place blockaded, d a carpenter's bench in it. The Treasurer of e Class addressed the ladies present, thanking em for their attendance, and expressing regret at they could not dance that night, as they had pected to have another dance before Lent.
 His Honor said it was a wretched case. "The it Saraband had been danced in the hall," and e members getting short notice of being turned t before the carnival preceding Lent, were in- gnant, and tore down some things to have a rise" out of the plaintiff, but did no harm, still ey acted improperly. They were most respect- le people. He gave a decree for 7s. 6d.
