BRITISH TRADE AND RUSSIAN ACTION.

DEPUTATION TO THE PRIME MINISTER

At the meeting held in London on Thursday afternoon of the East India and China Trade Section of the Chamber of Commerce to consider the effect on British trade by the Russian action regarding contraband of war, a letter was read from Sir Thomas Sutherland suggesting that the ministers should at once be approached. Resolutions were passed calling on ministers to adopt immediate and effective steps to remedy the existing state of affairs. A deputation then proceeded to wait upon Mr. Balfour.

SERIOUS ASSAULT.

WHAT DOES THE DOCTOR SAY?

At the City Petty Sessions in the case against Margaret Doolan for a serious assault on a woman named Hano: a Elligott, on Monday last,

Mr. Counihan, solicitor, applied to have Mrs. Doolan admitted to bail.

District Inspector O'Hara strenuously opposed bail. The injured woman was at present in Barrington's Hospital under medical care.

The Mayor said bail would not be measured except on the production of a doctor's certificate showing that the woman was out of danger.

GORED BY A BULL.

AND FATALLY INJURED.

A very sad occurrence took place at Hospital, Co. Limerick, a few days ago, which has caused the death of a respectable woman, named Mrs. Mary Kinery. It seems the deceased went to a farmer's house close to the town for milk or some other such business, and the cows were in the outer yard where deceased had to pass. Not thinking that there was any danger, she entered the yard, and suddenly she was attacked by a bull. She was knocked down and would undoubtedly be killed on the spot but for assistance being so close at hand. As it was, the poor woman was terribly injured. She was conveyed to Kilmallock Workhouse immediately, where she lived only six or seven hours. Much sympathy is felt for the deceased's family and friends. Her funeral was largely attended by the people of Hospital and surrounding districts.

THE HORSE SHOW,

Quality, not quantity, this year, says the "Globe," distinguished the Dublin Horse Show, largest of the kind in the world. The increase in local shows throughout the country has weeded out inferior animals, and discouraged their owners from competing in Dublin. The study of "leppers," however, is as great a cult in Ireland as ever, and the attendance has been enormous. It is that of a country crowd rather than a Dublin crowd, for the season is long past. Reports testify to the great improvement in Irish hunters, due to the recent fresh infusion of thoroughbred blood.

church (the Tractarian movement), literature, 1846 to 1865, artists of the middle Victorian era, and philosophy and logic.

THE SURVEY GAZETTEER.

Part eleven of "The Survey Gazetteer of the British Isles" (Newnes, 7d. fortnightly), bring the work from Lawrenny (a parish in Pembrokeshire) to Lusk (a little village and railway station a few miles outside Dublin).

The maps are, as usual, a valuable portion of the book, those in the part before us showing the relative height of land and depth of sea in the British Isles and North Sea, and the mean annual rainfall of the British Isles. In another table is shown the mean monthly rainfall of London for ten years, which shows an average of 24½ ins.

As in the previous parts, no place we could think of seems to be omitted.

In the dearth of reliable gazetteers of the United Kingdom this book when completed should be eagerly sought after.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION AT ONE SHILLING A MONTH.

The fourth instalment of Newnes' "Technological and Scientific Dictionary" brings the work from "Electric Motors" to "Gas Manufacture," and the sixty-four double-column pages of which the part is made up contain a considerable number of articles on a variety of subjects, which might almost be looked upon as tabloid treatises. It costs a shilling, and the part in this number which is devoted to gas engines is more than worth the money, and will be one of the most valuable and frequently consulted articles in this valuable dictionary.

PALL MALL MAGAZINE.

(1s.) Newton street, Holborn, W.C.—A splendidly filled number, both from a pictorial as well as literary point of view is the September issue of this always welcome and high class monthly. "Napoleon's journey from Fontainebleau to Elba" is well written and illustrated, giving some hitherto unpublished facts from the pen of Countess de la Warr. "Days with Velasquez" is illustrated by some of the artist's finest pictures. Literary geography deals with the homes and country of Carlyle. "Master Workers" tells of Dr. Alfred Russell Wallace, and a wonderfully interesting illustrated article is that by Mr. E. Walter Maunder, "The Canals of Mars," in which the author clearly demonstrates that the canals are non-existent, and that so far as regards Mars we are brought back to the position we occupied before 1877, i.e., there is no world except our own which affords us any positive evidence of the presence of life. "We may," says the author, "regret the vanished dream, but after all it is better not to know so much, than to know so many things are not so." The other articles and stories are fully up to the average in variety and excellence.

LADY'S PICTORIAL.

Among the weddings of the month in the "Lady's Pictorial" this week is a report of the marriage of Miss Olive Clæve and Mr. Malcolm Shaw. The portraits of the bride and bridegroom are given, and both are "speaking likenesses."

KING EDWARD'S HEALTH.

In view of the circulation of unfavourable reports regarding the health of King Edward, Dr. Ott, the physician attending his Majesty at Marienbad, is stated to have informed a repre-
