uttered by the Irish Reform Ass. contains no words of wisdom, though it may be taken as a warning not to regard Home Rule as a dead question. The Ass. calmly suggests the establishment of a statutory body in Ireland to have practically full control over Irish finance; in other words a half-way house on the road to Home Rule.
 A device pleasing, no doubt, to the body of faddists who form the Ass. but otherwise beneficial to no single human being. Now, we know what has been passing in the creature's head the time has arrived for the staff of a vigorous Balaam to be brought into full play. "St. James

THEATRE ROYAL.

Mr. C. Hilton St. Just's Grand Opera Company continue their engagement at the Theatre Royal before good houses. On Tuesday evening Wallace's beautiful opera, "Maritana," was placed on the boards, and last evening Donizette's "Lucia di Lammermoor." The representation of each was most successful, and heartily applauded.
 To-night, "Faust"; Friday, "La Traviata"; Saturday (matinee), "The Bohemian Girl," and Saturday night "The Lily of Killarney." These comprise a most enjoyable musical treat, which should be very liberally patronised by the music-loving public.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MYLES.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Prudence Myles, relict of the late Mr. John Myles, a member of an old Limerick family, took place this morning from her late residence, 25, Barrington-street, for the family burial-place at St. John's Churchyard.
 The demise of the venerable lady, who had lived all her life in Limerick, is sincerely regretted by a wide circle of friends, as evidenced by the large
