DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED.
 (By Telegraph To-day.)

A relative of Mrs. Seddon, of Mortlake, recently sentenced to death for murdering her husband, with whom it was alleged she had agreed to commit suicide, to-day received a Home Office letter announcing that the sentence had been respited and commuted to life penal servitude. It was added that "life penal servitude" was the usual form of the words, but the woman would, no doubt, not serve a lengthy term.

RECTOR OF IRISH COLLEGE.

The Very Rev. Dr. O'Riordan, the new Rector of the Irish College, Rome, left England yesterday for Rome, via Newhaven and Dieppe. He has been the guest of Father Beckley, of Wapping, for the past fortnight, during which time he has visited and has been visited by many London friends and Irish residents in the Metropolis.
