soldiers given to him. An hour later she noticed that one of the soldiers had broken off. Wisely, instead of admonishing him, she asked, 'Why did you do that?' He replied, 'I wanted to see if blood would flow.' And the mother was happy to find that her son possessed a inquiring mind.

"Another child of four years is absorbed in his game. The father calls his son. The latter says, 'Yes' but does not hudge, being taken up with his pastime. The father calls again, but unavailingly, and finally smacks the boy's head. Now this is unfair, as the child had made his reply quite unconsciously.

"Punishment is an art, and few people know how adequately to administer it. They lose their tempers and their reason as well."

THE LATE MR. WM. BOYD.

At a meeting of the Select Vestry of St. Michael's Parish, held yesterday, it was unanimously resolved:—"The Select Vestry desire to record their deep regret at the death of the late Mr. Wm. Boyd, for many years associated with the parish, the church, and the schools. The faithful labours of Mr. Boyd as a successful teacher of the young have won for him the cordial approval of many parents and of the parochial clergy, who are glad to have secured the services of his son as his successor in the schools. The Vestry wish to tender their sympathy to Mrs. Boyd and her family in this their time of sorrow."
