As the coffin was being borne into the Cathedral, "O Rest in the Lord" was played by Mr. F. Muspratt, organist. The service was partly choral, the 90th psalm being sung to Purcell's chant, and the hymn selected was the beautiful and touching one, "Peace, Perfect Peace." Chopin's funeral march was played as the coffin was being removed from the church to the vault by the theatre staff. The officiating clergymen were the Bishop, the Dean, the Chancellor, and the Rev. R. A. Adderley. The committal sentences at the vault were read by the Bishop.

There were no flowers by special request of the deceased. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Messrs. Todd and Company.

Carriages were sent by Mrs. O'Brien, South Hill; the Mayor, the Bishop, Sir Thos. Cleve, Mr. Fred. Cleve, Mr. J. N. Russell, Mr. A. Murray, Mr. W. L. Stokes, Dr. Gelston, Mr. W. Barrington, Mrs. Russell, Mr. Jerome Dowling, Mr. J. O'Grady Delmege, etc.

Rev. C. V. Atkinson was unavoidably existed only to be surmounted. A head to plan a hand to execute, he leaves behind him many monuments of the skill in the profession he adorned, and as he leaves behind in many of our hearts enduring monuments of the true attributes of the man, the real gold that lay beneath the rugged surface, needing only the touch of necessity to show it was there for all who needed it, hidden perhaps by a very ruggedness put on or simulated in order that the deep well of feeling he had might never be plumbed by the mere acquaintance.

Of his home life—which I was privileged to see somewhat—I dare say nothing. Those stalwart sons of his, as they stood broken-hearted near the open tomb, told more eloquently than words, the father he was to them, and how sadly he will be missed by them, as well as by that partner of his life whose poignant grief will surely be assuaged by the evidence of the love and affection, the tribute of genuine sorrow and heartfelt regret which accompanied him to the edge of the "great beyond." Nor of his social and intellectual abilities need I even try to write. His was a rich, well-stored mind, a mind out of whose stores could readily be got, anything which would point the moral or adorn the tale, no matter what the topic of conversation. It is given to few men to be at once a store-house of well-digested information on such widely divergent matters as "Bob" Fogarty was acquainted with. In the local history of the city, he was one to whom any enquirer could always turn with a certainty of obtaining ready and accurate information. In the realms of architecture, science, art, archaeology, and even theology, he was richly endowed with a knowledge both of deep thinking and sound reasoning, and while he could keep the table in a roar with his recollections of theatrical life, he could and did raise conversation to the highest level when subjects of higher import were under discussion. It is hardly necessary to repeat the time-honoured formula, "Peace to his soul." Reverently I say it, he found that "peace which passes all understanding" ere yet Aërial waved his wings above him, and in the early brightness of the calm summer morning he passed to where beyond these turmoils there is "Peace, Perfect Peace." He sleeps well, but if to live in hearts that loved us is not to die, then dear "Bob" is not dead but sleepeth, in glorious certainty of a joyful reunion with those left behind, in whose hearts he will not die while memory holds sway. While grief is keen, it is hard to realise "It is for the best," but for those privileged to watch the brave patient way in which a mortal sickness was endured, to see the gradual falling away of that stalwart form, one cannot but realise that it is for the best that he has after long and patient endurance earned the reward of eternal rest. "Bob" never paraded his religion, but in his heart, ere the end came, he knew and realised that it was the Lord's doing and was well, and so passed to his rest with the calm confidence of a little child, his last words "I am happy, perfectly happy" I would close this brief and all too imperfect appreciation of a man I had learned to respect and love, as much for the qualities of his heart, as his head, with words I once saw written on a tombstone, a fitting aspiration, and I trust a comforting one to all who sorrow, but who with the dawning of a brighter day shall see

Those angel faces smile, Which we have loved long since and lost awhile. They were these:—

Lord Jesus, as thou wilt If loved ones must depart, Suffer not sorrow's flood To overwhelm our heart; For they are blessed with Thee, Their race and conflict done, Let us but follow them, oh Lord, Thy will be done.

And so, in his eternal rest "dear old Bob" leaves those behind who will follow later on, richer in human qualities, richer in human sympathy and richer in even higher attributes than these, for the contact with a spirit so upright, so honourable, so brave, and so true as our dear friend who sleeps so soundly, awaiting the resurrection of the just man made perfect, and of whom all I would write, may I deserve, and some one write of me, when for me too, the call shall come.

CORIQUE.

Muffled Peals.

Last night, instead of the usual practice, the bell-ringers of St. Mary's Cathedral assisted by the ringers from St. Alphonsus Church, rang muffled peals as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Mr. Fogarty, and to the two members of the family (Messrs. Cecil and Gerard) who are members of St. Mary's band. The first peal was rung by the following:—Jos. H. Wright, treble (conductor), B. M. Horns, second; H. Brisbane, third; M. Hogan, fourth; H. G. Wyld, fifth; M. Mayne, sixth; P. Hickey, seventh, and D. Renson, tenor. The second peal was rung by J. Lyons, treble; P. O'Shea, second; R. W. Hewson, third; G. G. Johnson, fourth; S. Bourke, fifth; D. McNiece, sixth; L. G. Taylor, seventh, and P. Hicken, tenor. Ald. Dan McNiece, Deputy Mayor, conducted.

Vote of Condolence.

At the meeting of the patients at Barrington's Hospital held on the 1st inst., C. McGill presiding, the following resolution was proposed by P. Fitzmaurice, seconded by P. P. Power, and unanimously passed in silence:—"That we hereby tender to Dr. W. Fogarty our most sincere and heartfelt sympathy in the great loss which he has sustained by the death of his dear brother, Mr. R. Fogarty, C.E. and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Dr. W. Fogarty and to the Press.

THE ASSIZES.

The Assize Commission for the County and City will open on Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Justice Johnson will sit in the City Court-house, and Mr. Justice Gibson in the County. There are only two criminal cases to come before their lordships. That from the city is one in which a husband and wife, Denis and Margaret McCarthy, stand charged with wounding Mary Reynolds on the night of the 1st inst.

FORTHCOMING EVENTS.

WORTHY OF ATTENTION.

Fete at Blackwater.

There will be quite a gala day on Thursday next at Blackwater if the weather be fine, and there is at present every probability that it will be. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have got up a fete in which there will be plenty of amusements provided amid the picturesque surroundings. Not the least attractive will be a novel treasure hunt. Not only for the enjoyment provided but to help a most worthy organisation Henihan's brakes at 6d a head, which will start at 2.45, should be well patronised.

The Cinematograph.

Commencing on Monday next, we are to have the ever welcome cinematograph at the Theatre Royal for a week with popular pictures, and a selection of the very latest. The name of the original Irish Animated Co. is a sufficient guarantee of excellence, and whenever their pictures have been shown, here and elsewhere, they have met with the highest public appreciation.

SPORTS IN THE MARKETS FIELD.

Military and Naval Display.

On Tuesday next what promises to be a most attractive function will take place in the Markets Field. It is partly an honour of the visit of the Atlantic Fleet, but mainly to provide an afternoon's excellent sport for all and sundry. At 3 o'clock there will be a military tournament, naval display, tug of war and other forms of sport, the programme arranged being varied and excellent, and the price of admission within the reach of all.

ACCIDENT TO CITY LABOURER.

Patrick Aherne, a builder's labourer, fell from the scaffolding at the back of the Methodist Church last evening and sustained injuries of a somewhat serious nature. At the time of the accident Aherne was engaged removing stones from one tier to another. In this way he lost his balance and fell about forty feet. The ambulance was promptly summoned, and the patient was removed to Barrington's Hospital, where he was detained for treatment.
