Amusing Story of a Dread- nought Diver.

As showing how much at home a man may be to-day under water, I may relate an amusing story, says a writer in the August "St. Nicholas." Some months ago, while the great battleship Dreadnought was at Malta, one of the seamen divers went down to clear her propeller from some flotsam that had become entangled; and he failed to come up. It chanced that the rest of the battleship's divers were ashore, and grave concern was felt on the iron-clad for the missing worker.
Signals by telephone and lifeline were sent below, without avail. In the launch, above, the throb, throb of the air pump's cylinders went on; but the attendants looked at one another in dismay, fearing some strange tragedy deep down in those heaving green seas.

The worst was feared when some big brushes and other tools came floating to the surface; and thereupon the navigating lieutenants sent ashore an urgent message for one of the other divers.
The man came on board, dressed immediately, and went below, only to come up full of indignation.

"Why, that fellow's been asleep all this time," he said, wrathfully. "It was true. The man had just his lunch, and, finding the work much less serious than he had thought, he finished it in a few minutes, and then sat comfortably on one of the giant blades of the Dreadnought's propeller, and went to sleep, with inquisitive fishes swarming around him, attracted by the dazzling searchlight on his breast. The officers were so amused at the occurrence that no punishment was inflicted on the lazy one."

FUNERAL OF MR. M. O'NEILL.

On Sunday the remains of the late Mr. Michael O'Neill, whose death took place with such painful suddenness at Kilkee on Friday, were interred in Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery. At 3 o'clock the coffin was removed from St. John's Cathedral, where it rested since the evening before. The cortege was of immense dimensions, and was fully representative of the citizens, who heard with much regret of the death of one who was regarded with the kindest feelings in the city and among his numerous acquaintances.

The chief mourners were—John O'Neill (brother), John Bridgeman, Thomas Bridgeman (brothers-in-law), Michael O'Callaghan, and William Downey (uncles), John O'Callaghan, Joseph Cahill, Michael O'Neill (relatives).

The Clergy present were—Rev. A. Murphy, Adm., and Father Connolly, C.C.

Amongst the general public were—D. G.
Garry, W. W. Webb, Thomas Grubb, W. Leech, M. J. Guinan, T. Rookby, W. Eggers, P. Nagle, J. Gleeson, P. Galbraith, P. Wilson, O. Nunn, W. Dunn, M. Leahy, B.O., M. McInerney, B.C., Alderman P. McDonnell, E. Bourke, J. G.
O'Brien, B.O., J. Kivlehan, T. Riordan, M.
Moloney, J. Costelloe, etc.

Father Murphy officiated at the graveside.

Besides the specialist sent to the States, others will shortly be commissioned to go to Canada, South America, India, Russia for the purpose of making an exhaustive study of the subject. The scheme excellently illustrates the policy of thoroughness pursued by the authorities of the "Sunrise Kingdom."

THE BURGLARS' SEAS

Burglars broke into the Putney residence of Lord Wimborne, whose family is away, and removed a number of pictures and prints and a quantity of bric-a-brac. The plate had fortunately been removed as the family were not in residence.
