THE CORK STRIKE.

PICKETING FREQUENT.

Cork, Wednesday,

Compared with the past two or three mornings, matters in connection with the strike in the city assumed an appreciably livelier aspect during the earlier hours of to-day. It was noticeable that the strikers' pickets were more frequent, and that their action seemed to be influenced more by regularity of method than has been the case for some time. On the quays themselves there was very little deserving of attention or remark. Here, as from the commencement of the trouble, the efforts of the police were particularly centred, and following the procedure now in force for some time, only people on business are allowed to pass down beyond the Clyde Shipping Company's stores.

At an early hour to-day a body of picketers put in an appearance on Penrose Quay, and were diverted at Water street by a cordon of police on duty there, and directed to go on to King street. The picket of railway men is being maintained in Railway street. All through the morning the volume of traffic along the Northern quays was very considerable, and at times lines of floats and carts awaiting their turn to get to the stores extended for more than 100 yards. As a consequence of the strike large quantities of general merchandise and coal remain on the quay side, and this, of course, tends somewhat to add to the difficulty of dealing with deliveries. The companies concerned, however, are exerting every effort to minimise delay or inconsistencies of any kind, and, under the circumstances, with undoubted effect.

The steamer Pannure, with a cargo of coal from Swansea, for Messrs. James A. Harley and Co., arrived in Cork, and was berthed at the quay opposite the company's stores. The work of her unloading, which is being done by members of the General Workers' Union, is being carried out without any attention on behalf either of the strikers or the police. The Inniscarra, from Fsguard, and the Glengarriff, from Liverpool, arrived well up to time this morning at Penrose quay, and are being discharged by members of the Shipping Federation, guarded by large bodies of police.

The men in the employment of the Cork and Bandon Railway who left their work yesterday, were engaged in picketing the premises of the company. Other bodies of these men devoted their attention to following vehicles, proceeding through streets to and from the company's premises. A large force of police remained on-duty in the vicinity, while policemen were also on duty in different parts of the railway premises. The work in the goods department is being performed by some porters out of the platform department and a number of clerks.

At one o'clock this afternoon a procession of strikers and lock-out men and their leaders and immediate sympathisers was held in the city. The bodies participating which included the Irish Transport Workers and Cork Carters' Society, United Carmen, and Storemen, Gasworkers and General Labourers, Storemen, Woolcutter, and Textile Workers, assembled at Warren's place punctually at the hour appointed. There was little or no excitement. A procession marched through the streets to the National Monument, where it broke up. The processionists numbered about 1,500.
