she said it was a little hard no doubt to to listen to short vees in the midst tiful music, but, by the desire of the s Branch of the Limerick Industrial tion she wanted to speak to them and em of the aims and objects of the tion. Up to this they had given concerts and lectures in every parish Limerick with a view to educating the into patronising goods Irish made. The had insisted on getting Irish goods sup-o them. They had dressed in Irish
