KNOCKLONG MAN KILLED

In American Motor Smash.

A New York despatch gives details of the terrible motor smash at New Rochelle whereby two lives were lost. It says:—Two men are dead and a third in a dying condition and two others are laid up in their homes with painful bruises in consequence of a bad automobile smash up at Pelham road and North Avenue, New Rochelle. The victims are John Sullivan, junior, partner of the hardware firm of Bedford and Sullivan, and Patrick McGrath, part owner of the Manhattan Hotel.

McGrath is stated to have been a native of the Knocklong district.

The accident is stated to have been due to some defect in the steering gear. The machine, which according to the police was being driven at a terrific rate of speed, swerved from its course on the right side of the street, and in the twinkling of an eye had bounced to the side walls, and crashed into a telegraph pole. All the five occupants were thrown high in the air. Sullivan and McGrath both landed on their heads on the hard pavement several feet distant, and both died soon after reaching the New Rochelle hospital, where they were hurried.

William Wallace, an electrician and owner, who drove the ill-fated machine, sustained internal injuries and a bad scalp wound. He was unconscious, and the cause of the accident could not be ascertained. George Eberle and Grorer Sypher got off with comparative light hurts, but were unable to express any opinion as to what did go wrong.

The machine was completely wrecked, both front wheels were wrenched from their axles, and the car in general was converted into a heap of splintered wood and scrap iron.

Another automobile arriving on the scene soon after, was commandeered, and the three unconscious men—Sullivan, McGrath, and Wallace—were taken to the hospital. McGrath and Sullivan died without regaining consciousness soon after being put to bed, and another automobile took the other injured men to their homes.

CHARGE OF LARCENY.

Yesterday Mr. E. P. Hickson, R.M., heard in camera a charge preferred by District Inspector White against James Burns, an agricultural labourer, who was arrested in Dublin on a charge of larceny of £6 8s, and appropriating as alleged, the amount to prisoner's personal use. The accused was arrested in Dublin on a magistrate's warrant for his apprehension. A cheque was given to Burns on the 19th instant by Mr. A. Mackey, of Castleconnell, in whose employment he was, to be delivered to one Mr. Mescoll, at Ballina. Instead of so doing Burns, as alleged, cashed the cheque at Killaloe, applied the money to his own use, buying a silver watch for the sum of one pound, and then proceeding to Dublin by train. He was arrested on information given to the police, and on Thursday he was conveyed to Limerick by Constable Mulcahy, of Williamstreet, who was specially despatched for the purpose. A sum of £3 and the silver watch were found in his possession. Mr. Hickson remanded Burns in custody to Wednesday next for evidence

Mr. Moran—Is your mother, Mary Anne Winder? Yes.

Mr. Moran—She is on the supplemental list? Yes, but she is a very old woman.

His Honor—Is it you earn the money that keeps the house going? Yes.

Mr. Moran—She is liable for the rates as an inhabitant householder.

His Honor—She is down as a rated occupier.

Witness—I am responsible for the rates.

Mr. Moran—To whom do you pay rent? To the Presentation nuns.

Mr. Moran—In whose name is the rent paid? In my name.

Mr. Moran—If that is right he is entitled to be admitted.

The Witness produced his rent book, which showed that the rent was paid in his name.

His Honor admitted the claim of John Winder, and struck out his mother's name from the long list.

Patrick Gleeson claimed a vote as a new lodger in Windmill-street.

Mr. O'Sullivan—Are you a lodger in Windmill-street? I am.

Mr. O'Sullivan—How long do you occupy the rooms in which you live? Five years.

Mr. O'Sullivan—To whom do you pay rent? To my mother.

His Honor—The representation is wrong. Whose name is sent in?

Mr. O'Sullivan—James Gleeson. You are not James Gleeson? No.

His Honor said the witness could not claim on such a vital point, and accordingly rejected the application.

Martin McInerney claimed a vote as a lodger out of a house at New Road, Thomondgate.

Mr. Moran drew his Honor's attention to the similarity in the handwriting of the claimant and witness.

His Honor (to claimant)—Who prepares all the claims in the Castle Ward? Who is Pat Dillon, Violet Cottage, Cross Road, contractor? Did you see this paper at all?

Witness did not reply.

His Honor—Did you give any instructions to Pat Dillon to prepare this claim? Do you know anything about the preparation of the claim?

Witness—No, only that I would like to have a vote.

His Honor—Did you take any steps to have a vote? Did you give any instructions to Patrick Dillon to make your claim?

Witness—No.

His Honor—I cannot admit that claim.

Mr. Beauchamp—Go to someone else next time and make a proper claim.

His Honor—I would give you a vote only for the way the form was prepared. It was prepared without your authority.

Monday Night's Sitting.

His Honor intimated that he would sit again on Monday night at 7.30, and that would be the last opportunity claimants or persons objected to would have for saving their votes.
