little fellow was crossing Henry-street, when he was knocked down by a runaway horse. When picked up it was found that he had sustained injuries of a serious nature, and which necessitated his prompt removal to Barrington's Hospital. On arrival at the hospital he was attended by the house surgeon, and an examination revealed that the scalp was in part torn away, and that he had a fracture of the right parietal bone. Subsequently an operation was held, and enquiries to-day elicited that the little patient's condition was favourable enough. He is son of Mr. W. B. Joyce, head teacher, Leamy School, with whom the greatest sympathy is felt in his affliction.
