

inction of classes." They must expect no non in the march upward to equality of ship. Hereditary rank was doomed because it, nor could they, nor should they expect present unequal accumulations of wealth to. The co-operative system of production, its thousands of owners, was the entering e. In the United States Steel Corporation were to-day more than 30,000 workmen holders, and the number was rapidly increasing. Here laid, he believed, the true and final ion of the problem—capital and labour pulling her in the same boat as joint owners. Adam laid down the doctrine that man should istribute to the State in proportion to his ability so. While an income tax during life may some serious but still not overwhelming stions, there was no objection whatever to alk of the millionaire's board being taken by State at his death. One could not but wish lays might be prolonged to see the new world is to emerge from the present encouraging ation. One of the most desirable features in movement was that it tended to draw our race closer together. All English-speaking throughout the world were adopting these surés which had been found beneficial after in other parts of the Empire. The valuation proper city taxation of land, according to is, for example, which they had recently pted in some degree, was the rule wherever hish was spoken. Their system of plural voting, ch they were about to abolish, was unknown ny part of the Empire. It would not be rated for a moment. Of hereditary legislators y enjoyed a complete monopoly, which ir fellows of the other lands, how- r, in one sense, enjoyed also, they were so using. The law of primogeniture was unknown rever English was spoken, except here at ne. Equal distribution was the rule under law. In like manner in every land settled by race all religions were equally fostered, none ured beyond another. The English-speaking n in all lands, except here, insisted upon giving men of all religious sects the privileges he him- self enjoyed. There was no State Church. While had mentioned measures in which the Old me was behind her Colonies, they were to be ngratulated upon being in advance of all in re- set to old-age pensions—a noble measure. The soring fact was that our race everywhere was rothing side by side, each part giving of its best the other parts, and in some important fields a leading the whole world in the march upward d onward.

During the annual meeting of the Association, held on Wednesday, the election of the officers and Standing Council for 1912-13 took place. The President, Sir Bertram Windle; the Hon. Secretary, Rev. P. Dowling, C.M.; and the Hon. Treasurer, E. J. Long, of Limerick, were unanimously elected. As representatives of the County Councils on the Standing Council there were elected—Rev. M. J. M'Hugh, County Mayo; Patrick M'Grath, County Tipperary; Very Rev. Canon Cummins, County Roscommon. Official representative—John F. Boyle, County Waterford. ## Everybody likes Custard.

It is just as nice as cream and costs much less if you make it with milk and eggs and Brown & Polson's "Patent" Corn Flour.

There are two kinds of Custard. Either boiled thin to serve with Tapioca or Rice Pudding, Fruit Pies, and Stewed Fruits; or a thick baked Custard, hot or cold. But remember to follow the recipes in the Brown & Polson "Patent" Corn Flour packet. Then you are sure of having a
