

was Dr. Long, who was severely handled but he managed to make good his escape. Then Mr. H. V. McNamara, D.L., Ennistymon, was knocked about, and in the melee lost his hat, and had to retreat to the Theatre. As the bulk of the audience came out they were received with jeers, and groans, and many who had motor cars were subjected to a fusillade of stones with the result that several of the vehicles were damaged, and the occupants injured in some cases. The police were absolutely powerless but they did their best in the trying ordeal to which they were subjected. As Mr. J. A. Place, Hon. Secretary to the meeting, was leaving the Theatre, he was pursued by a hostile crowd. He was accompanied by a lady and gentleman who, like Mr. Place, came in for rough handling. In the melee his hat was torn off his head, and he and his party had to seek refuge in the General Post Office, at which stones were thrown. Archdeacon Hackett, while passing up George Street from the meeting, was struck with stones and received two wounds on the side of his face. Two other Protestant clergymen, one of them also a city man, were attacked and assaulted. The other, a county clergyman, was entering the Post office on private business when stones were thrown at him, and he was also kicked by the mob. Naturally the ladies who found safety there were greatly alarmed, and it was some time before they were able to get away under the police protection, which was requisitioned. The crowds that gathered in the vicinity of the Theatre were driven by the police up Glentworth street, and in a trice everything was disorder and confusion. Numerous stones were freely thrown, and the windows of the Protestant Young Men's Association were smashed in various places, but it must not be understood that the violence was contributed to by the crowd in general. It was mainly the work of a gang of young fellows who were evidently bent on mischief. Seeing the situation, the Constabulary charged the crowd and a second volley of stones was directed at the Young Men's premises. A Clare lady in a motor car turning into George street received a blow of a stone on the side of the head, and on alighting sought refuge in Mr. Christy's garage. The wind screen of the car was wrecked as were those of many others. A little after seven o'clock excitement was at its height. The police made several baton charges, and many were injured, and had to be taken away for treatment. The area of hostilities was now confined to Upper Glentworth-street, where the police were stoned, and for a time their efforts to keep the younger spirits in check were abortive. Eventually they succeeded in forcing the desperadoes as far as the Dominican church. Around this district the stone-throwing continued, and the windows of the Havergal Hall, both in Glentworth-street and Baker Place, were completely demolished, while several panes of glass were smashed in Trinity Church and the Diocesan Hall. The crowd also made their way into Barrington-street, where the front windows of St. Michael's Church, and the ornamental lamps were smashed with stones that lay strewn on the pavement yesterday morning, and several panes of glass in the windows of Archdeacon Hackett's residence next door were broken in the same way. To cope with the situation all the available police in the city were on duty, but their numbers were far too meagre to prevent the general demolition of windows in many business houses which followed as the night grew. Irrespective of creed, political or religious, the work of disorder continued, and while there were efforts made by the Roman Catholic clergy and some well known Nationalists to stay the violent and misguided methods pursued, very little came of the counsels of these gentlemen. About nine o'clock the police indulged in another baton charge, this time in George Street, and passing the County Club the plate glass at either side of the building was shattered. Despite the baton drives the wanton destruction to property went on. Crash after crash followed as the stones

FATALITY AT THE DOCKS.

A shocking fatality occurred at the Docks last evening about 4.30. It appears that a number of men were engaged at some repairs to the Harbour Commissioners' Dredger, Erin go Bragh, and amongst them was one Lawrence Doran, 22, of Dublin, and a rivetter by trade. He was working on "the ladder" and some other men were engaged in moving a crane on the top of the quay wall towards the East End. The crane slipped from the quay, and toppling over on Doran, crashed on his head with great force, killing him instantly. Some other workmen were injured, but not seriously. An inquest was held this evening.

FATAL BICYCLE ACCIDENT.

Thomas Goodwin, while cycling through Clare street, on Thursday evening, accidentally fell off his bicycle in trying to avoid a number of boys playing. He fell on his head and sustained injuries which proved fatal in Barrington's hospital early yesterday morning, whither he had been removed. The deceased who resided in Thomondgate was married and had a family.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

The initial round of the Limerick City League was contested to-day between Limerick United and Rovers, and resulted in a win for the former by 2 goals to nil.

Having broken the window in Mr. R. Hutchinson's news-shop, the rioters proceeded to loot the premises, but it was, as often happens in such cases, the unoffending people that came in for most of the batoning by the police. In the stupor several were knocked down and injured, many, it is stated, seriously. The Constabulary charged the crowd down George-street, striking right and left, and many people were unable, so closely were they pressed, to get out of the zone of danger. George-street was now the scene of disturbance, and pedestrians pursuing their way were in constant peril of either being struck by stones intended for shop windows, or a policeman's baton. Despite the constant charging by the Constabulary on duty at various points, the wrecking went on, and the few motor cars that sped through the thoroughfare were not allowed pass unmolested. The windows of Mr. J. Stewart, Chemist, George street, and of Mr. Wm. M. Kidd at the opposite side, were smashed by a fusillade of stones. At 9 o'clock His Lordship the Most Rev. Dr. O'Dwyer, who has been preaching to the men of the
