

RICK OPERATIC SOCIETY

"Pirates of Penzance."

"Pirates of Penzance" continues to draw houses at the Theatre Royal during the On Tuesday night, and again last night, the hall was packed from floor to ceiling, and as at the opening performance, was with the warmest appreciation. There is one change in the cast on Tuesday, Clandillon (Nenagh) playing the role of "John" sustained by Miss A. Glynn the night before. As General Stanley's eldest daughter, Clandillon was a conspicuous success. She finished rendering of her music, and with charming effect. All throughout the play she appeared to be in touch with every detail peculiar to a part for which she was well suited. She was the recipient of generous applause for the way she carried the numbers which fell to her lot. The orchestra and choruses were again capital, and the play proceeded with delightful smoothness to the end of the curtain. Those who have not seen the "Pirates" should see it as a most enjoyable treat.
