

our order prevailed throughout. At night the city of the residents in several streets houses illuminated. Confraternity meeting last night, the Father Mangan, C.S.S.R., referred to the procession on Sunday, and said in effect it lit to all concerned. He thanked those assisted in making the procession one of successful he had ever witnessed.

PHILOMENA'S SCHOOL.

day was prize distribution day at St. Philomena's Day School, and there was a large gathering of the relatives and friends of the pupils for the annual reunion. It was a very interesting and the musical portion of the programme proved most enjoyable, the young people acquitting themselves very nicely, and the music that gave especial pleasure to all who had the privilege of being present. At the close of the distribution, the Most Rev. Dr. O'Dwyer, and the pupils, referring in complimentary terms to the education imparted by the Nuns of the Sacred Heart Convent, who have charge of St. Philomena's Day School, and the advantages they had who attended the School. The following interesting programme was followed with great pleasure by the audience:—
 "The Witches' Flight," Miss B. Graham, Power (H. M. Russell); Fescal Greetings; "The Mountaineers" (H. W. Ketelby); Song, "Washing Day," Miss K. Guerin; Song, "The Merry Sailors"; four-hand piece, Miss Power, Miss O'Connor, Miss Kenny, McNamara; duet, "The Primrose Waltz," Sheehan, Miss Hayes (R. Tatlow). THE GAITY.

There was a crowded audience at the well-lit Gaiety Theatre last night, and the programme submitted was well up to the standard set by the proprietors of this popular house. The first drama shown was "The Convict's Secret," resting to a degree and pre-eminently instructive. A beautiful film was that entitled "Godland Streams," depicting Nature in her loveliest mood. Another select view was "An Allied Shield," while "The Price of Jealousy" is a distinctly novel subject, and greatly appreciated. The comic subjects screened were—"How Rudolph Cured Himself," "Sammy's Cabat," and "Bloomer's Adventure."

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Patrick Ryan, residing in the Thomondgate district, met with a serious accident yesterday morning. He was employed at Messrs. O'Callahan's tannery in Lower Gefald Griffin street, and while at work his left foot was caught by the belt attached to one of the machine wheels, with the result that he was hoist round some short distance by the wheel, and his foot all but severed from above the ankle. He was removed to Arrington's Hospital, where it was found on examination that amputation would be necessary. Ryan, who was in a critical state as a consequence of the very serious injury he sustained, received every care and attention at the hospital. The young man, Patrick Ryan, who was so inspection with the clerk of works no cottages to be selected for repairs in that division. The clerk of works not to execute any repairs where he prepares specification and estimate, and he is to submit a monthly report as to the execution of the works in his charge. The report was signed by Messrs. T. Murphy, P. O'Brien, J.P., T. O'Gorman, James Kearney, D. Walsh, John Carroll, J.P., P. Hayes, John Dunworth, and Thos. Carroll.

Mr. Hayes proposed that it be adopted.

Mr. Hogan seconded.

In the course of the discussion.

Mr. Moloney said he knew a contractor who in consequence of the increase in the price of materials since the original specification had not any remuneration for his labour. He suggested that Mr. Joyce make a current estimate and give the man a chance of a fair day's wages for a fair day's work.

Chairman—It will be a current estimate, and you can go through it.

The report was then unanimously adopted.

NENAGH WATER SUPPLY.

Proposed New Main.

In view of the proposal of the Great Southern and Western Railway Company to pay a sum of £90 per year for ten years to the Nenagh Urban Council for a supply of water to their premises, the Council are about to borrow a sum of £2,500 to lay a new water main into the town. Before doing so it was deemed advisable to call a public meeting of the ratepayers at an early date to discuss the matter with them.

THE ATHENÆUM.

A very attractive programme was submitted to the patrons of the Athenæum Picture-drome last night, when the two performances were well attended. "Sheridan's Ride," exhibited in two parts, comprises a tale in which love and war are the predominating features. It is a film of considerable merit, and was received with the heartiest the Government were concerned in the session to a close at the earliest possible moment because they were wholly uncertain of their position, not only in the country, but in the House itself. In conclusion, Mr. Smith declared warmly, that the Opposition, when they returned to power, would have no recourse to repeal the three bills.

Mr. Birrell wound up for the Government with a characteristically humorous speech, which the House in an almost continual roar of laughter but added little to the arguments for the motion. At one point, dealing with the statement that people ridiculed Parliament, he said they were not to be expected to leave off talking of good business and the Stock Exchange to read a list of speeches. His mentioning of the Stock Exchange was an unfortunate slip, for the Opposition cheered it to the echo. As for the Committee stage of the Home Rule Bill, it was very important, he admitted, but they could not have intermediate stages on a bill for years and years. By Mr. Chamberlain if an amendment to the Ulster would be regarded as a wrecking amendment, he replied in the negative, but that this immediately afterwards by saying the amendment would have to be made intelligible.

Mr. Chamberlain's amendment was defeated 294 to 202, the closure was agreed to, and a Prime Minister's motion then went through out a division.

HOME RULE.

Action of the Lords.

It is expected that the Home Rule Bill passing through its remaining stages in the Commons will reach the House of Lords Monday, July 7. The second reading probably be fixed for the Monday following. According to present arrangements, as the Daily Telegraph, only one day will be devoted to the debate, and the division will result in certain rejection of the measure for the time.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"The Three Musketeers"

The visit of Mr. Alexander Marsh's Royal Company concludes this week. Last night a talented actor and his excellent company presented Dumas's celebrated work "The Three Musketeers," to a large and appreciative audience. The drama was given with fine all the characters being aptly chosen, and acted to a nicety. Mr. Marsh undertook the part of that of the adventurous D'Artagnan, in which he scored a success. He gave a beautiful imitation of the part, and was the recipient of a shower of applause. To Miss Carrie F. the character of "Melady de Winter," a more fetching study could be conceived. Baillie was essentially clever, her enunciation being beyond a suspicion of the Grimshaw, as the Queen was another while the minor roles were ably upheld. Staging was again a feature of the presentation.
