

ATE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

The Press Association learns that the King will open Parliament in person on November 11th, and the occasion will be marked by a State ceremonial differing as little as practicable from the usually observed, though necessarily modified to some extent in regard to the outdoor ceremony. Details have not yet been settled, but the probability is that the processions between Buckingham Palace and the House of Lords will be of comparatively modest dimensions. The procedure within the Houses of Parliament, however, will be shorn of its spectacular attractions. Majesty was anxious at this grave time in the history of the country to inaugurate peacefully the approaching new Session, but at the same time there was a natural desire on the part of His Majesty and all concerned to avoid anything in the nature of pomp and display. The arrangement indicated above, while dispensing with mere parades, will enable the King to carry out his desire. The Queen, it is understood, will be associated with His Majesty, and other members of the Royal Family will probably be present at the ceremony.

MR REDMOND AND BELFAST.

Mr John Redmond, M.P. is to visit Belfast at the week-end in connection with the organisation of the Irish National Volunteers. On Sunday morning the Nationalist leader will review an armed muster of the Belfast regiments at Celtic Park, and a procession headed by the armed volunteers will march through the streets to the grounds. The public will be admitted to the ground, which will accommodate 30,000. Later in the evening Mr Redmond will be presented with a number of addresses in St Mary's Hall, and subsequently entertained to a banquet.

MR PATRICK EGAN AND THE "IRISH WORLD."

Mr Patrick Egan has written to Mr Robert Erskine, publisher of the Irish World, New York, regarding his resignation of the position held in connection with the business management of that paper, and stating—It has been the cause of the most profound amazement and regret to me to serve for some time back, even weeks before the outbreak of the active participation of Irishmen in the present European war came upon the tapis, a transparently hostile tone adopted in certain of the Irish World's editorials towards the recognised leaders of National Ireland.

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.
Correct Name of the Product
Prescribed by Leading Specialist
Now Ascertained.

Although so much has been said and written concerning the new treatment for indigestion and dyspepsia—the treatment which was originally employed by a specialist in his private practice, and proved so successful as to warrant its adoption in hospitals throughout the country—there are still a large number of sufferers who are doubtful as to the name and nature of the preparation which giving such wonderful results. We are, therefore, glad to be in a position to state definitely that the product employed is an antacid known to physicians and chemists as bismarated magnesium, and the quantity usually advised in the treatment of most forms of stomach trouble is half a teaspoonful in a little warm or cold water immediately

U.I.L AND RECRUITING.

There was a great and enthusiastic meeting at Westminster on Monday, under the auspices of the United Irish League, in furtherance of the recruiting campaign. Mr T.P.O'Connor presided, and many Irish members were on the platform. Mr O'Connor said that Irishmen had fought for the principle of nationality for centuries, and, having won freedom, they were now bound to support it in other countries. At the speaker's request the audience rose, and with uplifted hand took a pledge to restore freedom to Belgium. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Dr MacNamara also spoke. Lieutenant-General Sir Luke O'Connor, who was on the platform, with his breast covered with medals, was introduced by the Chairman, who said that he had won a V.C. at Inkerman, and had risen from the ranks. Sir Luke had a great reception, and appealed to the manhood of the country to join the ranks, to defend the liberties of the Empire. Lord MacDonnell said that the recruiting difficulties in Ireland were being removed. A resolution pledging Irishmen to support the Allied forces was carried.

LORD O'BRIEN'S WILL.

The Right Hon. Peter Baron O'Brien, of Kilenora, Bart, of Airfield, Stillorgan Road, Donnybrook, lately Lord Chief Justice of Ireland; prior to that Solicitor-General and Attorney-General for Ireland, who died on the 7th September last, left personal estate in the United Kingdom valued at £29,231. Probate has been granted to his widow, the sole executrix, to whom he left all of his property absolutely. He expressed the desire that he should be buried in the country in which he should die, and that his funeral should be private and conducted in the most inexpensive manner possible.

DEATH FROM BURNS.

On Saturday Coroner E. J. Cleary, M.D., and a Jury held an inquest into the circumstances attending the death of Margaret Murphy, aged three years, who died shortly after admission to Kilmallock Union Hospital on Friday evening.

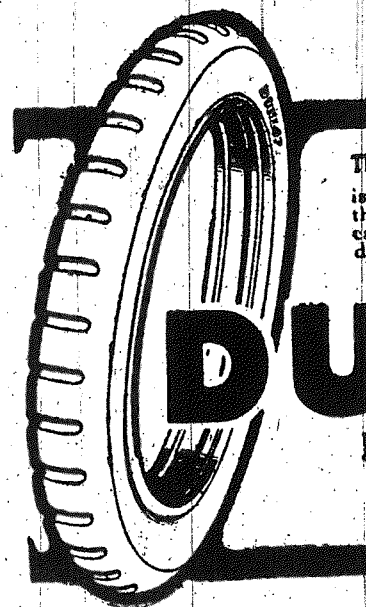

The evidence went to show that while sitting at the fire the child slipped off a chair, and in falling she tilted a pot of boiling stiraabout which fell on her back. By direction of Dr. Cremin she was taken to hospital where she died, the cause of death being shock due to extensive burns.

The jury returned a verdict that the child died from shock as the result of burns accidentally received, and that no blame was attached to the father, to whom they extended their sympathy.

SOLDIER CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER.

At Westminster on Tuesday, John J Rogers, a private in the Queen's Royal West Surrey Regiment, was remanded on bail charged with the manslaughter of Thomas Bailey. It was stated that an argument over the war originated in a public house, between the accused and some others. There was a fight in the street, and Bailey who was knocked down, was found to be dead on reaching the hospital. The accused who was alleged to have struck the fatal blow, said when arrested, "they set about me and I struck Bailey in self-defence. I have only one hand to defend myself. I was wounded at the front."

Rogers, who is on sick furlough, was wounded at the battle of Mons.
