

rule is the law of the land for which our ancestors have struggled for centuries. And if Self-Government is on the Statute Book to-day it is, I am convinced, owing to the existence of the Volunteers, for our friends as well as our enemies saw that we were drilling and arming a national army, which had, perhaps, even more weight in the councils of our rulers than any amount of eloquent speeches. Continuing, Mr. Redmond said—I must repeat with emphasis what your worthy Commander-in-Chief, Colonel Moore, has already said—that in joining the Volunteers you were not enrolling yourselves as soldiers to go and fight any battles outside of Ireland. It is in Ireland and for Ireland your duty lies—to guard Ireland to the last breath if needs be, and to safeguard your native Parliament when in being. This is the paramount and only duty for which the Volunteers are established, and I can safely predict that when our new Parliament is opened, that there will be at least 50,000 Volunteers well armed and equipped seen guarding the streets of Dublin. The whole world is at war directly or indirectly—it may be called a world war—and every nation is arming, equipping and volunteering, and if Ireland were to stand aloof, would not she be made a laughing stock by the world? Self-preservation, the highest interests and honour of safe-guarding our country calls for this. Therefore, let every young man who is fit join the ranks of the Volunteers. He cannot devote his energy and intelligence to a nobler cause, but let nobody join it for a plaything—to be present on parade to-day and absent to-morrow. He must be earnest and be ready at all times to submit himself to discipline and obedience. If they wished as individuals to enlist as soldiers and take part in the war, that was for each individual to consider, but enrolling themselves in the Volunteers had nothing to do with the matter. Mr. Redmond paid a very high tribute to Colonel Moore as a very able Commander-in-Chief, and to his high qualities as a distinguished Irish soldier.

At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Redmond was loudly applauded.

Canon Flannery made a short and appropriate address, which evoked cheers.

After the inspection and parade the party motored to O'Callaghan's Mills and Ennis, where similar inspections of Volunteers were made.

Queenstown Call

ACTION OF CUNARD COMPANY

A few days ago the Cunard Company wired their Queenstown agent that during Sundays of the month of November they will resume sailings from Queenstown, their ships, Laconia, Franconia, Transylvania, calling at Queenstown for passengers. Mails are not arranged for, so far; but it is expected a supplementary American mail will be embarked as well. The news is looked on at Queenstown, as a resumption of the Cunard Company's old sailings from Queenstown for New York, and has given intense satisfaction there.

OOLA DIVISION

At a meeting of the above body, held on Sunday last, Mr. Denis M'Cormack in the chair, it was proposed by Mr. William Breen and seconded by Mr. John M'Cormack:—"That we hereby record our sincere regret on the death of the Rev. T. O'Dwyer, P.P. of Sologhead and Oola, a noble, learned and pious priest; a reliable friend, a sterling Irishman, a gentleman who for long will be mourned by the people of this parish to whose welfare, spiritual and temporal, he devoted the best years of his life. That we now adjourn as a mark of respect to his memory. That copies of this resolution be forwarded to Rev. T. O'Dwyer, P.P., Cappawhite; Mr. O'Dwyer, Pallasgreen; Mrs. Ryan, Clonoulty; Messrs Edmond Browne, B.L., and Valentine Browne, B.L., London, and to the Press."—JOHN RYAN (Buckley), Oola, Secretary.

Abbeyfeale Petty Sessions

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

Before Messrs W. L. C. Harnett and J. Lane.

Sergeant Glynn, Inspector Food and Drugs, summoned P. O'Connor for selling butter containing 20.6 per cent. of water.

Mr. D. Leahy, solicitor—The added water is merely .6 over what the most experienced butter workers consider a fair standard.

Fined 6d and 14s costs.

Mr. D. E. Leahy, Schools Attendance Inspector, applied for Attendance Orders, which were granted in several cases.

Death of a Nun

The death has occurred at the Convent of Mercy, Templemore, of Mother Mary Alococque Purcell. Deceased was sister of the late Mr. Purcell, manager, and aunt of Mr. Purcell, present accountant of the National Bank, Templemore.

The funeral of Mr. William Dillane, of Kinnaird, Glin, writes our Glin correspondent, took place on Monday afternoon, the remains being accompanied from his residence to Kilmfergus Churchyard by a large cortege of relatives and sympathisers, paying their last respects to the memory of one who was a good man and a staunch Nationalist. In the Home Rule and land agitations he played a man's part and fortunately lived to see the National cause victorious. The sympathy of all goes out to his sorrowing wife and family.

J. J. QUAID, County Secretary.
