

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, at 10 o'clock p.m.; Friday and Saturday, at 9.30 p.m. No order was made in regard to theatres and music-halls. The actual application, which was in the name of Mr. Davies, Chief Commissioner, D.M.P., was for closing at 8 p.m. "on all week-days until further notice." Evidence had been heard on Tuesday, and prior to the Court resuming on Wednesday a consultation took place between the various parties. When the Recorder took his seat, the Solicitor-General applied for an adjournment to consider the terms of the order which had been agreed to.

Mr. T. M. Healy, K.C., M.P., for the general body of the licensing trade, objected, and said this was "not an ante-chamber of the Castle; it is a Court of Justice." "That," said the Solicitor-General, "is a most improper observation." "I am not going to take my orders from Dublin Castle," retorted Mr. Healy, "I hope Mr. Healy will contain himself," observed the Solicitor-General, amidst laughter, "he is bubbling over with American salt." Mr. Healy said he was prepared to make a large and patriotic concession, "and this is the way it is received." He added that it was to be submitted to the Under-Secretary at Dublin Castle. The Recorder remarked that the matter was too important for any small ebullitions of temper.

On resuming after luncheon, the Recorder said he had a conference with the Solicitor-General, Mr. Healy, Serjeant Matheson, and other counsel representing varied interests, and all agreed, as a matter of patriotic duty, that he should deal with the application without further controversy or discussion. He had decided to follow, in part, the precedent set in London, and he directed that, until 1st January next the sale of intoxicating liquor by retail licence holders in the Dublin Metropolitan Police District—including all licence holders within the Finance Act of 1910—be suspended on four days in the weeks—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—at 10 p.m., and on two days—Friday and Saturday—at 9.30 p.m. With reference to the supply and consumption of intoxicating liquor in registered clubs and hotels within the area, he made a like order, making no exemption of any kind. He was of opinion that the Act was never intended to cover either music hall or theatre, and he made no order as to these houses. The order, his Lordship continued, served a temporary necessity, and he trusted that the whole purpose would have long passed away before January 1st. He wanted it to be understood that there was nothing to prevent an application being made, on proper notice, for a continuance of the order, or a varied order, if the necessity arose; but he had no doubt that no such necessity would arise. Everyone had met the application in the spirit of citizens taking it for granted that some concession was due to those who were engaged in the great task of defending the Empire—a task which he hoped would be secured by the 1st January.

The judgment was received with loud applause in court.
