BREACH OF THE FISHERY LAWS.

The Department intimated that in the case of James Kelly, who was convicted at Newpallas Petty Sessions on the 12th January last, and fined £4 for a breach of the fishery laws, the Lords Justices had considered the memorial submitted, and decided that the law must take its course.

ROD-FISHING CASE.

The Department asked if there was a copy of the judgment to be had with reference to the case against Mr D'Argy Irvine in connexion with rod-fishing for salmon.

Mr Alton said he had a copy of the judgment with him.

Mr Blood-Smyth—That is the rod-fishing for salmon case?

Mr Alton—Yes.

The routine business was disposed of, and the meeting adjourned.
