TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS, FATAL MOTOR-CAR ACCIDENT

French Communique.

Enemy Attack Repulsed.

Patis, Tuesday.
This afternoon's official communique says:—
There is nothing of importance to add to last night's communique.
An enemy attack directed against the trenches captured by us on June 6th at Quennoyere was completely repulsed.
A German long range gun fired two projectiles on Compiègne. No one was injured, and no damage was done.

Important Russian Victories.

Enemy Repulsed with Heavy Loss.

Advance Trenches Re-captured (REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

Petrograd, Monday.
An official communique says:—
Yesterday we repulsed and inflicted heavy losses on great forces of the enemy attempting to cross the river Windau, near Liatzkow.
North of Prosnysz we re-captured all the advanced trenches which the enemy took the day before.
In Galicia during the 12th and 13th stubborn fighting was renewed, from Piskorwice on the San to Mosciska, the enemy attacking in dense columns on the front of the river Lubaczewka, which he succeeded in crossing and captured the village on the Tuckla.
On the Dneister the enemy unsuccessfully attacked our bridge head. In the counter attack we took four hundred prisoners.

America and the War.

Mr Roosevelt and Poltroonery.

The Duty of the Nation.

New York, Monday.
Mr Roosevelt in a letter to the National Security League declares that professional pacifists are preaching poltroonery. It was the duty of the Nation to protect itself. It was wicked to be neutral between right and wrong, and he considers arbitration treaties recently concluded mischievous as condoning criminal inactivity.

Finance Bill.

Usual Means of Raising Revenue.

In the House of Commons yesterday Sir John Simon informed Mr Nield that the police were inquiring into every case of an outbreak of fire in the country in which there were any grounds for suspicion. The number of fires since the outbreak of war had not, so far as he could see, been unusually large.
Mr Ramsay MacDonald made a personal statement, declaring that he was neither directly nor indirectly responsible for the circulation to persons who had lost relatives in the war of a pamphlet which he had written declaring that the war was unjust. The leaflet criticised the diplomacy which led to the war. The circulation of this leaflet in such a manner had neither the support nor the sympathy of any organisation with which he was associated.
The Finance Bill was read a second time with-

The Inquest.

Mr J. F. Barry, J.P., City Coroner, held an inquest in Barrington's Hospital at noon to-day as to the death of John Downey, a small boy, aged 12, who was struck by a motor-car in Clare-street on Wednesday, 9th instant, sustaining injuries to the head, and causing death on Sunday morning.
The following jury were sworn:—Patrick Carey (foreman), Michael Collins, Peter Quilligan, Stephen Hall, John White, Thomas Campbell, Thomas Dillon, John Cross, John Madigan, Michael Howard, John Nash, and Wm Collier.
Head Constable Healy conducted the inquiry on the part of the Crown; and Mr H. O'B. Moran, solicitor, appeared for the father of the deceased boy.
Miss Ethel Robinson, from the Nenagh district, the driver of the motor car on the occasion, and some relatives and friends of the young lady, were present at the inquiry.
Before going into evidence, Mr Barry said he understood there was a desire on the part of Mr James O'Brien, solr, Coroner for North Tipperary, to make a statement regarding the case, and if it was agreeable to the jury they would hear him.
The jury having acquiesced, Mr O'Brien, solr, said he appeared as representing Miss Robinson, the driver, and her father, the owner of the motor car, and at the outset of the proceedings he was instructed to express their most sincere regret that this unfortunate accident should have occurred. The jury would agree with him that the distress to a person who was unwittingly the cause of a death of this sort was next to that felt by the next of kin. If the jury wished Miss Robinson would give evidence and tell them how the accident occurred, and when they heard her the Coroner, and the jury, would unhesitatingly agree that the fatality was purely the result of accident, and that no foresight or care was omitted on the occasion by the young lady. He (Mr O'Brien) was glad to be able to tell the jury that Mr Moran, solr., and himself had agreed as to a settlement with regard to the compensation to be allowed to the father of the boy. Although the legal liability for an accident of this sort was little or nothing from the pecuniary point of view still his (Mr O'Brien's) client recognised that the accident was the cause of death, and he did not desire to stand on any legal right. He wished to assuage the grief of the boy's father, and he had accordingly with the concurrence of Mr Moran, agreed to make a monetary payment to the father by way of compensation, exceedingly fair and reasonable in the circumstances. It was a gratuitous and generous payment, and Mr Moran agreed with him (Mr O'Brien) that was so.
Mr Moran, solicitor, on behalf of the father of the boy, said he had very much pleasure in accepting Mr O'Brien's expression of regret on the part of the young lady and her father. It was his (Mr Moran's) duty very often, when addressing juries like the present, to press a charge of negligence, but in this case his duty was of an entirely different character, and he might say that the action at the other side was in no way owing to pressure or threat. The settlement arrived at was, as Mr O'Brien stated, voluntarily made and gladly accepted, though not on the basis of any legal liability. It was his (Mr Moran's) duty to make inquiries into the case, and it afforded him the greatest possible pleasure to be able to state, as the result of his inquiries, that the lady who was the driver of the car, and the other occupants of the vehicle, were in no way responsible for the death of the boy. They did all that was possible to prevent it, and on behalf of the father he wholly acquitted the young lady from any responsibility for the accident. She did everything that could be done to prevent the accident and avoid it, as did the other occupants of the car. On behalf of the boy's father he desired to thank Miss Robinson and her father for the very generous way they had acted in the case, and for their practical sympathy over the accident.
Mr Barry said he was sure Mr O'Brien stated truly the feelings of the young lady and her father with respect to the death of the boy. The jury, however, would have to hear the evidence and decide on it quite irrespective of the arrangements made outside.
Evidence was then given.
Martin Downey, father of the deceased, said he saw the boy about 9 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday last, the 9th instant. The boy was then in his usual health, and witnessed advised him to go to school. Witness did not see him afterwards until he saw him in the hospital. The boy, who was turned 12 years of age, had not gone to school. The lad's mother is dead. The child died about half-past six o'clock on Sunday morning, 13th inst.
Catherine O'Lughlen, Clare Street, said that on the morning of the accident she was at her own door, and saw a motor car coming from Kilmurry towards the city. She could not say it was going very fast. There was a woman playing a banjo in the street not far away from where the accident occurred. Witness did not see the boy until the accident took place, but she PARLIAMENT. Finance Bill. Usual Means of Raising Revenue.

In the House of Commons yesterday Sir John Simon informed Mr Field that the police were inquiring into every case of an outbreak of fire in the country in which there were any grounds for suspicion. The number of fires since the outbreak of war had not, so far as he could see, been unusually large.
Mr Ramsay MacDonald made a personal statement, declaring that he was neither directly nor indirectly responsible for the circulation to persons who had lost relatives in the war of a pamphlet which he had written declaring that the war was unjust. The leaflet criticised the diplomacy which led to the war. The circulation of this leaflet in such a manner had neither the support nor the sympathy of any organisation with which he was associated.
The Finance Bill was read a second time without debate.
During the debate on the motion for the adjournment several members spoke of the desirability of an opportunity for discussing the finance of the war.
Mr McKenna (Chancellor of the Exchequer) said that the revenue provided by the present bill would be quite inadequate to meet our expenditure. We should have to provide other means of an unusual kind, and when these means came to be considered the topics alluded to in the course of the debate could be discussed.

CLARE COUNTY COUNCIL. Election of Chairman and Solicitor.

At the annual statutory meeting of the Clare County Council held at Ennis yesterday, Mr James O'Regan, J.P., outgoing Chairman, presided.
The first business was the election of a Chairman for the ensuing year.
Mr O'Regan was proposed and seconded but declined to continue in the chair.
Mr J. K. Kett, J.P., was then elected Chairman, and Mr Sarsfield Maguire, Vice-Chairman.
The appointment of Solicitor to the Council in room of the late Mr J. F. Cullinan was taken up. Applications for the position were received from Mr J. J. Daly L.L.B. and Mr James Lynch, Solicitors.
Mr Considine proposed Mr Daly, who was seconded by Mr Maguire.
Mr Garry proposed Mr Lynch, who was seconded by Mr Lyden.
The poll resulted as follows:—
For Mr Daly—Messrs P. McInerney, B. Crowley, P. C. Nagle, G. Frost, J. Murray, J. Keane, H. R. Glynn, M. F. Nagle, P. J. O'Loughlin, J. Collins, M. Considine, M. Mescal, B. Skehan, W. O'Connor, S. Maguire, and the Chairman—16.
For Mr Lynch—Messrs J. Lynch, D. Healy, L. Brohan, J. Sexton, M. Lyden, P. J. Linnane, W. Purcell, P. Garry, F. Burke, Thomas Burke, T. Hannon, M. Griffin, P. Cullo, and E. Murphy—14.
Mr O'Regan did not vote.
The Chairman declared Mr Daly elected.

Mr Barry said he was sure Mr O'Brien stated truly the feelings of the young lady and her father with respect to the death of the boy. The jury, however, would have to hear the evidence and decide on it quite irrespective of the arrangements made outside.

Evidence was then given.
Martin Downey, father of the deceased, said he saw the boy about 9 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday last, the 9th instant. The boy was then in his usual health, and witnessed advised him to go to school. Witness did not see him afterwards until he saw him in the hospital. The boy, who was turned 12 years of age, had not gone to school. The lad's mother is dead. The child died about half-past six o'clock on Sunday morning, 13th inst.

Catherine O'Loughlin, Clare Street, said that on the morning of the accident she was at her own door, and saw a motor car coming from Kilmurry towards the city. She could not say it was going very fast. There was a woman playing a banjo in the street not far away from where the accident occurred. Witness did not see the boy until the accident took place, but she saw him under the motor car. Witness got affected and went into her own house.

Nurse Anne Jane Cullen, St John's Square, stated she also remembered the morning of the accident. Witness was on the scene immediately after it occurred. With the assistance of Miss Robinson and the other occupants of the car she took the boy to Barrington's Hospital. Witness did not take the lad from under the car. The occupants of the car and witness did everything possible for the boy.

The Coroner—The occupants of the car did everything they could for the boy. We know you would.

The Witness—Yes, they did.
The Coroner—You did not see the accident yourself?

The Witness—No, sir.
Head Constable Healy said Miss Robinson was present, and he understood she desired to give evidence. She was not bound to do so, but if she purposed giving evidence it would be the duty of the Coroner to warn her before so doing.

Mr O'Brien said if it was thought necessary Miss Robinson would give evidence, but they had, from the testimony of the witnesses, heard practically all that had occurred on the occasion. Miss Robinson was at present rather unnerved by what took place, but if the jury wished she could be examined.

Mr Barry asked did the jury desire to have the young lady examined.

Several jurors answered in the negative, and Mr Barry said as the jury did not require Miss Robinson's evidence, he would close the inquiry with the medical evidence.

Dr John Holmes was then called, and deposed—I am surgeon of Barrington's Hospital. On Wednesday, June 9th instant, about 11.5 a.m. John Downey, the deceased, was brought to the hospital in an unconscious condition. He had hæmorrhage from the ears and mouth, abrasions on left ear and left ankle, contusions on left leg and left shoulder. He died on Sunday, 13th inst, at about 6.45 a.m. In my opinion the cause of death was fracture of the base of the skull.

The jury having consulted found that the death of the boy was due to fracture of the base of the skull, and that they considered the driver of the motor car was in no way to blame for the regrettable accident.
