were slightly below those of the average week, and numbered 22,000. The pigs exported from Ireland were one-third of those killed in Ireland, but the exports since the beginning of the year are equivalent to only one-fifth of the home-killing.
The exports last week were 76 per cent above those in the corresponding week of last year, whilst the eleven weeks' exports are slightly below last year's level.
