

man professors have persuaded people to live by and for war; be remembered that in inculcated belief that, for Germany, war is a good business proposition—and must always emerge not victorious but aggrandised by acquisitions and rich indemnities—agents of “world-dominion” are able to point to three demonstrations of the soundness of their the wonderfully remunerative aggression waged by Germany for half of the nineteenth century—their teachings these militarists drilled into the minds of the German an overweening self-assurance by now become a second nature. that in one of the most famous of the expositions of Prussian “well-being” the German people were adjured to “world-dominion or downfall” alternative results of the projected in which European civilisation is usually engaged. But we do not expect any “good German” was expected ever did—take the latter alternative. It was for Germany to her unconquerable legions at the door, and to trample her prostrate states contemptuously under her feet. Thus, the Hun will not easily give up the beliefs in which they have been constructed from their cradles upwards, which they have indeed been compelled to make no small sacrifice of what the German would regard as individual freedom. In the smallest concerns of daily life they are accustomed, and have grown used to, to be oppressed and disciplined as never European nation has ever been. People bred under such influences are habituated to such drastic official action, it would be unreasonable to expect enlightenment to proceed apace. As has been said, there is indisputable evidence both from the battlefields in the East and from the interior of Germany to show that her armies and her rulers alike have begun to realise that the delusions of their rulers have gone hopelessly astray. No censorship can now be put on the German nation the hard

Parish in Waterford city met on Friday in the Diocesan Office, the Bishop of Cashel presiding. After considerable deliberation, the Board adjourned till Friday, the 29th inst. The premises of Viscount Gough's steward and gardener, within his lordship's castle yard at Lough Cutra, were fired into a few nights ago, within a few yards of a recently erected patrol station. No one was injured. The labourers on the estate recently struck for higher wages.

FUNERAL OF MR WILLIAM A. WALLACE.

The remains of the late Mr William Augustus Wallace, whose death took place under such tragic circumstances near Ballylongford on Monday night, were interred this morning at the family burial place, St. Munchin's Church. At 10 o'clock the funeral left the Baptist Chapel, Military-road, whither the remains were removed on Tuesday. The cortege was of large and representative proportions, and testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held in the city, and the deep sympathy extended to his family in their great bereavement. The chief mourners were—Joseph N A Wallace, Frederick G Wallace, and Charles P Wallace (brothers); Octavius Wallace, Charles H Fitt, and Dr W A Fogerty (uncles); Frederick Raine and Edward G Stokes (brothers-in-law); Cecil Fogerty, Henry A Hartford, and Caleb Wallace (cousins). Amongst the general public were—J S Gaffney, Crown Solicitor; W Slater, A Jordan, P J O'Sullivan, solr; J F Barry, J P, City Coroner; R A Hanna, J H Todd, The Very Rev Dean Hackett, A Woodhouse, D Tidmarsh, W Mulligan, Rev Canon Robertson, T H Brett, C Ebbill, solr; C G Mercier, A J Barnett, T Ledger, Dr J Lee, M Fitzgerald, J A Spillane, B M Nelson, D O'Donovan, Ald P McDonagh, R Nash, solr, P E O'Donnell, solr; J McClatchey, M Caffrey, W Holliday, J P, E Holliday, J Dodds, solr, C Broderick, J McNamara, P Bourke, A Bruce, J Fitzell, J A Doyle, solr, B Gubbins, J Egan, H Nestor, W G Peacocks, J P, A J Sexton, J G Wilkinson, E Lloyd, Dr W J O'Sullivan, A Hall, W E Pike, J Wheatley, J Irwin, P R Toppin, S J Matthews, J Stack, J Myles, J Dinan, P Sullivan, T Worrell, J McCarthy, W G DeCourcy, H Vickery, Dr G Myles, J Shannon, J G Fitt, T F Ryan, County Surveyor; J J Dundon, solr, Dr P F Graham, Dr J Malone, J Glazer, W O'Riordan, J DeCourcy, junr, M Egan, J Wallace, W M Nolan, J P, Town Clerk; M Guerin, Postmaster; J J Hanratty, J P Lynch, B C; W Thompson, J Bruce, H Stewart, G R Barre, G Cromer, P Hamilton, C Downey, J Stewarr, E W Angley, E T Gelston, V J Turner, W McGuire, R T Hartigan, M Doyle, W Trousdell, A J Eakins, W J McNab, W P Angley, D L Roche, J P; H W Ashe, J F Bennis, L Griffiths, P Hannan, W Christy, J C T Day, A M DePrins, W Dunn, S F Ebrill, J Fizzle, T Ryan, J P; J J Delany, J P; A E Goodwin, J Thompson, W J Halpin, G McKiernan, J E Galbraith, S Hewson, J Johnson, B A; W Metcalfe, W H Owens, W J Horne, E Pearson, T Rookby, A O'G Lalor, E A Wickham, E L Wickham, A Nestor, J Waugh, J Clupe, J McNamara, D C; D S Waters, J Thompson, J E Toppin, H W Ashe, W Whittaker, etc. Mrs O'Brien, South Hill, and many others sent carriages. Wreaths were sent by—Mr and Mrs Dinan, the office staff Bedford Row, and Nellie, Victoria Terrace. Pastor H E Spelman officiated.

MILITARY SERVICE ACT.

partial successes.” The Rassians in Persia have fought as far as Kuridjan, within 20 miles of the latter is about 160 miles N. E of Bag

Late Lieutenant Asquith Press Sympathy.

London, Wednesday. At a conference representing the Local Provincial Press held in London to-day at Burnham in the chair, the following was passed:—“That the conference express its deep sympathy with the Minister, Mrs Raymond Asquith, and members of the family, in the great grief they have sustained by the death of Lieutenant Raymond Asquith.”

County Limerick PW Wounded in Action

Rev J Stack, C.S.S.R., who is a native of Limerick, and has been acting as arm collector at the front for a considerable time, was wounded in the leg by a fragment of shell on the 14th inst. He is at present in a hospital, where he is making rapid recovery. He was mentioned in a dispatch by Sir John French last January for distinguished conduct.

Hon Guy V Baring M.P. in Action

The “Morning Post” says—The death of Lieutenant-Colonel Guy V Baring, M.P. for Winchester, who was killed in action on the 15th inst.

Crown Prince's Reward for Verdun Failure

According to a Berlin telegram, the Crown Prince issued the following order on September 9:—“The Kaiser to-day conferred the Leaves Pour le Merite. This appreciation by this high distinction refers not only to every one of my brave armaments, but also to every one of my brave armaments who has achieved in the fighting battles of Verdun. To-day, when the campaign is not yet over, the importance of these battles, which almost without interruption since the beginning of the war, and their influence on the course of the war, which Germany was obliged to fight, cannot yet be approximately estimated. There is only one fact established—seldom in the history of the war were such things demanded from—and accomplished by—one army under most difficult conditions, and with such regard to bold daring in attack and defence, and strength of resistance. What you have gained, comrades, I have proved yourselves equal to the great task which was demanded from us. You can be assured of my everlasting gratitude. (Signed) “COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE GERMAN ARMY AND NAVAL FORCES.”

Shocking Enemy Boats

According to the Bucharest edition of the “Morning Post,” the Danube fish boats covered several bodies of Rumanian