

SEEDS ACT.

At the Castleconnell Petty Sessions yesterday, before Mr P J Kelly, R.M., in the chair; Mr Vansittart, Mr Quin, Mr Humphreys, and Mr O'Brien,

Mr James S Gaffney, Crown Solicitor, appeared to prosecute Mrs Susan Canter for failing to cut or remove weeds from her lands in accordance with the provisions of the above-mentioned Act.

Mr Torrens, an official of the Department, duly proved the fact of the weeds growing on the defendant's lands, the service of the requisite notice under the Act, and the failure of the defendant to make any effort to remove them.

The magistrates fined the defendant 5s and costs.

MESSRS O'GORMON BROS, CLONMEL.

It affords us pleasure to reproduce the following from "The Garage," a prominent English trade paper devoted to the motoring industry—"Those of you who have done a bit of touring in Ireland may know Clonmel, and may be familiar with a big firm of motor engineers and carriage builders there—Messrs O'Gorman Bros, to wit. They were noted for coachwork in pre-motor days, but their then reputation has extended by leaps and bounds. They keep at least £250 worth of spare parts of one make of car, and reckon that any owner in Ireland ought to be able to obtain a replacement part in a day, railways permitting. The extent of the premises is an eye-opener to the Englishman who thinks too often that the biggest and best garages and workshops are all west of the Irish Channel. Messrs O'Gorman have some scores of employees, in spite of the big batch of patriots who have gone to the war."

Necessity for Unit Policy.

The "Times" Paris correspondent's date says—Mr Lloyd George's visit yesterday with M Briand, General Pershing, and left for Painleve, General Smuts, and M Fra. They will continue there the conversations between M Painleve and Mr Lloyd George in London, and they will have the military advice of Sir William Robertson. Among the lessons drawn from the events in Italy is the necessity for an inter-Allied policy which will guide the whole war, and safeguard them against the mistakes that experienced on the Italian front. The American Army makes it advisable to take now the steps which shall ensure the best utilisation of the resources of the Allies when they take the field. It is marked that M Painleve had a long conference with General Pershing before his departure.
