THE BANK HOLIDAY.

There was a pleasant change in the weather for the Bank Holiday, which was observed yesterday in a customary manner. A clear sky, with sunshine, ushered in the morning, and continued throughout the day. It was a distinct temptation to spend the day from home; but, then, the complete absence of travelling by rail affected the general situation. There were no trains from Tipperary, due to the munitions crisis, with the result that very many were deprived of a day's recreation at the riverside or the seaside. The usual method of conveyance had to be abandoned, and people had to get out of town for the day; and it was very much in evidence, while the popular pleasure resorts also occupied a prominent place in the programme of locomotion, while motor cars, although an expensive luxury nowadays, were in requisition for many rendezvous. Week-end trippers had a very enjoyable time of it by the seaside, and the "London Line" charabancs were fully patronized on their way to Killee. The Bank Holiday on the whole was a very enjoyable one, devoid of any serious incidents, and observed with decorum and good order on the part of the citizens.

THE BRUREE AMBUSH.

Official Report.

General Headquarters in Ireland issued the following account yesterday of the attack on a party of soldiers at Bruree on July 29th.

"A military cyclist patrol, consisting of one officer and five other ranks, accompanied by a police sergeant and constable from Kilmallock, were ambushed on the Bruree-Kilmallock road, one mile from Bruree, by about 50 armed men. A volley was fired at the patrol, and a private was seriously wounded, and lay in the road. Owing to the intensity of the fire the remainder of the patrol were unable to assist the wounded man. The raiders got up to him, seized his rifle, and two or three of them used him as a rifle rest, taking cover behind him. Fire could not be returned at those men, as the body of the wounded man would have been riddled with bullets. After half an hour's heavy firing the raiders were beaten off, and the wounded man was dragged with difficulty to a cottage. The raiders surrounded the cottage and poured a heavy fire into it. As ammunition was running short, one of the patrol, disguised in civilian attire, got away on a bicycle, and, though fired at, succeeded in reaching Bruff, where he reported the situation, and reinforcements of military and police immediately turned out in a car to the assistance of the patrol. On the arrival of these reinforcements the raiders fled. They were pursued across the fields, and it is believed that a good number were wounded. One man was arrested, having been identified as having participated in the raid. The raiders were followed to Bruree, where the military were again fired on. Casualties amongst the raiders are not definitely ascertained; but a small boy wandered into the line of fire and was mortally wounded, whether by military or raiders is not known. Buildings were searched, and a man was found mortally wounded. A Webley revolver, with some discharged rounds, were picked up near by. Military and police casualties consist of one private wounded. The raiders' casualties unknown. Two military and one police bicycle were taken. The police captured four bicycles found behind ditches near the scene of attack.

THE WRECKAGE OF TUAM.

Writ To Be Issued Against The Executive.

A Tuam Correspondent says that claims, amounting to £63,686, in connection with the wreckage of the town, have been received by the Tuam District Council. It was decided at the last meeting of the council to issue a writ against the Government for the recovery of the amount. The chairman, Mr C. J. Kennedy, characterized the wrecking of the town as a notorious outrage, perpetrated by those who were supposed to maintain law and order.

A strong resolution of protest was passed. Other claims for malicious injury, amounting to £11,225 were also received, the whole sum totalling £74,911.

ARCHBISHOP BARRY "HELD UP."

A Cork message says:—On Sunday the Most Rev Dr Barry, Archbishop of Hobart, who since his return from Rome has been visiting his brother in his native town of Middleton, was "held up" by

... which he filled the Presidency of the New West Agricultural and Industrial Show. Since its inauguration five years ago, for his kindness in placing the beautiful demesne grounds at the disposal of the Committee, and for energy and labour he expended in making the undertaking such a great success—a success which grew each year under his presidential care.

This resolution was spoken to by many men in the highest terms, and the hope was expressed of seeing Captain Curling occupying the post again, next year to resume the laudable work of forwarding the agricultural and industrial interests of the district in a peaceful and happy Ireland.

The President suitably replied, and thanked the members, one and all, for their generous and active support of the Show, and for the amicable relations and loyal co-operation received, thereby making his work a labor of love. In his expressions of gratitude to the General and Executive Committees he complimented the name of Mr O'Donnell, who was so helpful in secretarial duties, and in his eulogy of the Secretary he was supported by every man present.

The Secretary regrets that a telegram from Messrs Buckley, Daly, and Byrne, of Abbeyferry, arrived too late—forty-five minutes after the close of the meeting. They sent regret and inability to attend owing to lack of travel facilities, and expressed the opinion that it was right to go on with the Show in the usual manner.

The ordinary executive meetings of the Society will be held as usual once a month.

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX.

The "Daily Telegraph" Parliamentary correspondent writes:—The Government have no objection to preventing Archbishop Mannix from landing at Liverpool on the arrival of the W. Star liner, Baltic, at that port. The Prime Minister's statement last week was that Archbishop Mannix would not be allowed to land "in Ireland," and no new decision has been taken on the subject.
