

the resignation with regret under the circumstances. It is the sincere wish of Mr Barry's numerous friends in the Council and in the city and elsewhere that he may soon be restored to health. Complaint has for some time past existed as to inadequate lighting in the city, or at all events in some parts of the city, and attention has been drawn to the fact by a member of the Council. The Gas Engineer, Mr Enright, who has always shown a ready desire to convenience the public, pointed out that in some localities an undertaking given by people to extinguish the lamps at 10 p.m. had not been carried out, and the result was that lamps were lighting into the morning. This has been patent to any observer from time to time, and it, of course, simply means absolute waste in these days, when the cost of coal is so very high. Now that attention is drawn to the matter, it is to be hoped it will have the desired effect, and help to improve the lighting in places that require it in the dark winter evenings now with us.

LIMERICK MAILS SERVICE.

The service of the mails between Limerick, Dublin, and Cork continues to be spasmodic, and as such a decided drawback to trade in Limerick. To day there was no dispatch of mails from Limerick, except one train on the Kerry line, while there were no inward mails by train from any place. Yesterday, however, there was a hopeful improvement in the train service, five trains leaving and arriving with the mails.

A NEW MODEL.

Models for the street, for the house, for the evening. Wraps, Hats, Blouses and Lingerie are constantly arriving at 14 Bedford Row. Fortunately these goods do not remain long on the premises, as the quality is superior, the designs unique, and the prices low enough to tempt the most careful and exacting buyer. For instance, this week a delightful Frock, specially designed by Mr. C. Chene, Hamilton, has arrived. The bolice is of lemon satin, figured with a fascinating design in blue, and the neck finished with a collar (a la Mary Queen of Scots). A skirt of navy taffeta with a daintily-strung skirt completes this attractive little model. (Advt)
